FAIRFAX POST OFFICE FIRE

Piccola's Performance At Festival Thrills Rinaldi

SPOLETO, Italy (UPI) — For Hugo Rinaldo, the performance of the teenage Orchestra Piccola of Marin at the Festival of Two Worlds was "the kind of experience that happens once in a lifetime."

Rinaldi has been working with young musicians in northern California for almost two decades but Sunday night's concert was special.

It marked the first time an amateur group has performed at Spoleto in the 16 years of the prestigious festival directed by Italian composer Gian Carlo Menotti.

"Last night's concert was absolutely glorious," Rinaldi said yesterday.

"There was a standing ovation. There were tears. It's the kind of experience that only happens once in a lifetime and its taken me 19 years to get this with students."

A string ensemble, it is made up of 21 girls and six boys 14 to 18 years old selected from the 98-member Marin Youth Symphony.

"An orchestra like this is very, very musical," Rinaldi said. "They're the cream of the crop, dedicated, committed. They work very hard.

"And being young is an advantage. They're fresh, constantly fresh. They haven't been stereotyped in any manner and they are in one organic body when they get into the orchestra, not individualists like most adult musicians," he said.

Rinaldi, who conducts the San Francisco Symphony Workshop, said working with young musicians of this caliber was his "first love" because of "the human element which is so beautiful from students to a conductor and that you rarely get from an adult orchestra."

His belief in the ability of his young musicians was so strong that he mailed their only recording to Spoleto, hoping it would produce an invitation.

"I said, well, who knows. First we got no answer back and then after repeated telephone calls they said it was no use their listening to the recording because Mr. Menotti doesn't ask amateurs to play here," Rinaldi said.

But finally they did listen and the invitation arrived."

(So impressed with Marin's young Orchestra Piccola was Menotti that he asked the young people to stay on to participate in some of the events to be conducted by internationally known orchestra conductors.

(That news was conveyed in a telephone conversation last night between Maybelle Speckmann, former Independent-Journal critic and Leonard Jared of Tiburon.

(Friday the young musicians will play in the Mozart Marathon beginning at 11 p.m. and continuing through 2 a.m. Saturday. It is being coordinated by Menotti and conductor Lucas Foss.

(The Orchestra Piccola will play in the Coronation Mass, accompanying the Westminster Choir of Philadelphia, the choir in residence at the festival; the G Minor Symphony conducted by Loren Maazel,the "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" conducted by Gino Lineotti, and the Serenata Notturno, K. 129. Performing in a double piano concerto will be Eliane and Evelyn Lust.

(At last night's party given for the youngsters at his home Menotti also invited them to remain Saturday — after Rinaldi returns home in time to participate in a San Francisco Symphony Workshop — to play in the Britten War Requiem to be conducted by Christopher Keene. The young people will leave for home after the performance.)

Does he expect to bring the orchestra Piccola back to Spoleto next year? Rinaldi was asked.

"We'll have to wait and see what happens about that," he said.

"But what this trip has done is to raise the image and status of this orchestra and give other students in the country the impetus to really work hard and try to get into it."

Petaluma's Tax Rate Unchanged

The Petaluma City Council last night adopted a 1973-74 operating budget of $3,752,167 and left the tax rate unchanged. (Another Petaluma City Council story, page 3.)

The budget is $277,283 more than last year's $3,474,884. During lengthy budget sessions the council added $189,000 to the figure proposed by City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer, but most of the increase is due to salary raises for employees.

Meyer said the general tax rate would remain at $1.50 per $100 assessed valuation although debt service will add another 39 cents to bring the total to $1.89 per $100 assessed valuation. He said the budget will be balanced by dipping into the reserve fund for $98,000.

Finance Director Cecil G. Gealta estimated that property taxes would generate an income of $960,221 and that the city's assessed valuation increased about $2 million to $64,427,925 this year.

Dollar's Decline Continues

BONN (UPI) — The dollar rallied briefly today and then sagged to exchange rates that approached or exceeded yesterday's record slump in several major money centers. Some continental dealers predicted further losses for the U.S. currency.

In Frankfurt, the dollar opened higher at 2.4120 marks and headed down from there all day to a closing average of 2.39 marks. Yesterday's close was 2.3975 median. The yesterday fixing was the dollar's low-water mark to date in West Germany at 2.3820 marks.

In Zurich, the dollar also rallied briefly but slumped by closing time to a record low of 2.8375 Swiss francs to the dollar. Yesterday's close was 2.8825 median.

"It's absolutely possible the dollar will fall further on Swiss markets, because demand for the franc has increased since Germany revalued the mark Friday," a dealer on the Zurich exchange said.

Late trends in other major markets were similar.

In Brussels, the free market dollar opened higher at 36.40 Belgian francs to the dollar but slid to 36.325 by afternoon. it closed yesterday at 36.275.

In Britain the dollar moved up to $2.5760 from yesterday's close of $2.58, but retreated later to $2.57905. In Paris the free-market dollar at first held steady with yesterday's close of 4.1250 francs median but then weakened to 4.1150. In Amsterdam the greenback continued yesterday's trend, opening lower at 2.6170 guilders and falling by afternoon to 2.6040. It closed yesterday at 2.6225.

In Stockholm, the dollar gained a fraction over yesterday's record low close of 4.02 Kronor to 4.03 kronor and steadied there.

In Vienna, the U.S. currency fell to a record low 17.65 Austrian schillings from Thursday's close of 18.36. The drop followed Austria's upward revaluing of the Schilling by 4.8 per cent yesterday.

"The dollar can still go down a little further in Paris," said a banker in the French capital. "It has lost 10 per cent. It could lose another 10 or 15 per cent."

In Stockholm, a Swedish banker said: "There is no doubt the dollar has been undervalued for a long time but there are no signs of an early change for the better. Rather, we could expect another dollar slump before the situation reverses."

Gold sold in London early today at $121 an ounce, down 75 cents from yesterday's close of $121.75.

"The dollar is much too low and should pick up some strength," one Frankfurt banker said. "When this will happen, however, I don't know."

"I see prospects the dollar is coming back to better health in the days to come," said a Paris bank official, adding that he based his optimism on the raising of interest rates in U.S. banks to 15 per cent, which he thought would help curb U.S. inflation.

But other bankers cited figures indicating West Germany this year would dislodge the United States as the world's leader in foreign trade. They feared this would further undermine dwindling confidence in the dollar.

$171,000 Slash Requested From County's Bus Costs

Special Meeting Asked With Bridge Directors

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Marin County Transit District directors today asked the Golden Gate Bridge District to cut $171,000 off last fiscal year's bill for local bus service.

The unanimous request followed a report by a transit district consultant that the bridge district had "misapplied" the cost-sharing formula for local bus service. The consultant, William F. Hibbard, said if he were a Marin property taxpayer he would file a taxpayer's suit to prevent payment of the $171,000.

The sum represented the cost to the county for passengers who ride transbay buses but get on and off within the county. Hibbard said there was no legal basis for charging the county for such passengers.

The entire legal obligation of the county to pay the bill — which last week jumped unexpectedly from $606,000 to $742,000 — was questioned by County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney. He noted the transit board never formally ratified the cost-sharing formula, which previously was estimated to cost the county $606,000.

The board also asked for a special meeting with bridge district directors at 10 a.m. Monday to toll plaza offices to discuss the difference and their financial problems. Proposals by the transit district staff to cut the payment would create "considerable hard feelings" on the bridge board.

Supervisor Michael Wornam, who also serves as bridge director, predicted the county's request would get nowhere.

The bridge district's bus transit manager, H. Donald White, cautioned that he must know by July 15 if service is to be cut so that new schedules can be drawn, as required by the bus driver's union contract.

The unexepcted jump in bus cost would far outstrip the county's ability to pay and next year alone leave a deficit of almost $170,000 — which neatly matches the amount the county wants to lop off the bill both this year and next year.

White said the unexpected cost jump was due primarily to an increase in the average length of the trip taken by local passengers.

The average has gone from three to four miles, thus has had a dramatic effect on the cost-sharing formula, White said.

The board's request for the $171,000 cut would bring the county's bill down to $571,000. In no case, the board agreed, should the county pay more than the original $606,000 it agreed to last February.

The transit board will meet again next Tuesday at 8:30 a.m. at Civic Center to take up the rest of its agenda and discuss Monday's meeting with bridge district directors.

Brush Blaze Remains Uncontained

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — An infrared mapper was flown over the "One Horse Fire" today to help firefighters working to contain California's worst blaze of the year which has burned more than 10,000 acres.

The fire, which had burned to the fringes of Mount San Jacinto State Park, was declared 80 per cent contained early today but officials said it will be another day or two before the blaze is under control.

The infrared mapper was used to help the firefighters accurately map the fire which was burning in extremely rugged and steep terrain.

"Lack of a good map due to the real steep country has hampered us in fighting the fire," a division of forestry spokesman said. "The infrared film will differentiate between the burned and non-burned areas. We'll use it during the day to keep progress on the fire."

The state division of forestry and U.S. Forest Service fielded an army of 1,500 men—and the six women of the "Morningstar Blues" from Fresno, Calif., an all female squad that is a rarity in the virtually all male world of forest fire fighting teams.

Because of the rough mountain terrain into which the fire burned—steep slopes, peaks reaching 6,500 feet and more, and cliffs up to 500 feet—the firefighters were chasing the blaze in a fleet of 12 helicopters.

They used ropes to clamber down cliff faces to get at the spearheads of flame.

The fire started in dry brush land Saturday near One Horse Springs, from which it took its name. Authorities said the blaze, which began in the Morongo Indian Reservation, was started by fireworks. Three boys were questioned by sheriff's deputies and released.

Forest Service officials estimated the fire had consumed more than one million board feet of timber since it got into the pine forests at higher elevations, and did $359,000 damage to timber, watershed and equipment.

They reported about 50 firefighters had been treated for minor injuries, including sprained ankles, cuts, small burns and poison oak swellings.

Recall Vote Election To Be Sept. 18

Without comment, the Corte Madera Town Council last night set an election date of Sept. 18 for voters to decide whether three of its members should be ousted from office. (Other Corte Madera Town Council stories, pages 6, 7.)

Councilmen voted unanimously for the date and the formal motion was introduced by Councilman Edward W. Colthurst, considered the prime target of recall movers.

Also up for recall in the special election are Mayor Holmes S. Norville and councilman Harold B. Wagstaff.

The bridge collapsed, killing at least seven persons and injuring another 30.

Officials said the village mayor, Olivio Manarolo, was among the injured.

San Rafael Approves New Development Tax

By NELS JOHNSON

The San Rafael City Council last night approved a tax on new commercial and industrial construction to offset the cost of existing city improvements and municipal expenses generated by additional development. (Other San Rafael City Council stories, page 9.)

Revenues resulting from the levy, which imposes a tax rate of 5 cents per square foot on industrial construction and 10 cents per square foot on commercial construction, will be used for improvement and expansion of city parks and recreation facilities.

Councilman John A. Miskimen, who last year opposed a similar tax of $75 per bedroom on residential construction, also opposed the companion commercial and industrial tax measure. Mayor C. Paul Bettini is on vacation.

City Mgr. William J. Bielser, who said payment of the new tax will be required before building permits are issued, claimed the measure would have raised about $52,000 last fiscal year.

The council's action was opposed by representatives of the business community.

Carl S. Brown, executive director of the Redwood Empire Building Industry Association, called the measure a discriminatory tax.

James Mahoney, a San Rafael businessman, said the levy was a "hidden tax" that would make builders a "collection agency" for the city.

David Greenlee, manager of the Marin Builder's Exchange, said city councilmen were contributing to the rising cost of

Discussions On BART Strike Held

OAKLAND (UPI) — The directors of the Bay Area Rapid Transit district met in special session today and promptly went behind closed doors to discuss the two-day-old strike against the system.

Eight of the 12 board members were present when newsmen and an audience of about 100 persons, including several sign-carrying pickets, were asked to leave the meeting room during the executive session.

The board was able to close its doors to the public because it was discussing a salary matter—the status of labor relations negotiations.

The status was bad—more than 1,200 BART employes went on strike yesterday, halting all trains on America's newest mass transit system and driving thousands of commuters back to their cars.

Mayor Joseph L. Alioto of San Francisco reconvened the negotiations at his office yesterday after agreeing to act as a mediator. He announced late in the evening that another session would be held today.

The mayor said he would "translate the issues into dollars" in an attempt to resolve the dispute.

Conspiring With Enemy Counts Off

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army and the Navy today dismissed charges of conspiring with the enemy filed against seven enlisted men who had been prisoners of war in North Vietnam.

Army Secretary Howard Callaway and Navy Secretary John Warner ruled there was too little evidence supporting the accusations made by Air Force Col. Theodore Guy to warrant court-martial proceedings against the seven men.

In addition, the secretaries said, Guy's charges violated "the policy of the Department of Defense against holding trials for alleged propaganda statements."

An eighth enlisted man included in the charges Guy filed May 29 was cleared of those charges after his apparent suicide last Wednesday. The action today leaves only two former prisoners of war —both officers —charged with misconduct while in prison camps.

Each of the service secretaries said the fact that the men had suffered in prison played a role in the decision to dismiss the charges.

"We must not overlook the good behavior of these men during the two or three years each spent under brutal prison conditions in South Vietnam before they were moved to the North —the lack of food and medical care, the sub-primitive living conditions and the physical torture," Callaway said.

"They had a very hard time, and they behaved admirably during this period."

Guy was commanding officer of the prison camp in North Vietnam, called The Plantation, where the men were held during the last years of the war.

His charges accused them of aiding the enemy, disobeying orders, seeking asylum in North Vietnam, taking part in an anti-war group called The Peace Committee, and making model airplanes for North Vietnamese soldiers to use in target practice.

Betty Grable Dies Of Cancer

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) – Betty Grable, the blonde whose legs made her the favorite pinup girl of GIs in World War II, died yesterday. She was 56.

St. John's hospital said she died yesterday evening of lung cancer. She had been hospitalized since April.

Miss Grable, the queen of lavish technicolor movies and the highest paid woman in the United States in the late 1940s was for years voted among the top 10 stars in box office appeal.

Despite her success, the actress was always modest and frank about her talents. She was the first to admit that she was far from the world's best singer or dancer, and she didn't think the famous Grable "gams" were all that great either. She often said she thought Marlene Dietrich's legs were better.

In her heyday she earned an estimated $300,000 a year in such movies as "Tin Pan Alley," "Coney Island," "The Dolly Sisters" and "How to Marry a Millionaire." In the 1940s, this was good enough to make her the nation's highest paid woman, according to the U.S. Treasury Department.

Miss Grable was born Dec. 18, 1916, in St. Louis, Mo., the daughter of Conn Grable, a wealthy stockbroker, and his wife, Lillian, who had given up her own show business aspirations to get married and later became a prime mover of her daughter's career.

"Mother was always my driving force," Miss Grable once said.

By age 4, Betty was dancing and playing the saxophone and ukelele. Her mother saw that she went on to study ballet, piano, trap drums and acrobatic dancing.

During a 1929 visit to Hollywood, Betty talked her mother into staying. Her father returned to St. Louis and his business and his wife later divorced him.

The next year, Betty, then 13, lied about her age and won a spot in a blackfaced chorus line at Fox Studio, making her film debut in "Let's Go Places."

She married her co-star in "College Swing," Jackie Coogan, "The Kid" of silent film fame, on Nov. 21, 1937. She divorced him Oct. 11, 1939, complaining he had a quarrelsome disposition and was not considerate of her welfare.

In 1939 she went to Broadway for a supporting role in the musical "Dubarry Was a Lady" and ended up stealing the show from its star, Ethel Merman.

This brought Miss Grable an offer to star in "Down Argentine Way" when the film's original star, Alice Faye, became ill. This technicolor musical became the format for a dozen other Grable films such as "Pin-Up Girl," "Moon over Miami" and "Mother Wore Tights."

When Darryl Zanuck said he would make her a great actress in the role of a drunk in the drama "The Razor's Edge," Miss Grable turned him down.

After her divorce from Coogan and a romance with George Raft Miss Grable married band leader Harry James on July 5, 1943, in Las Vegas, Nev. The couple had two daughters, Victoria, 29, and Jessica, 27.

Miss Grable divorced James in 1965 after 22 years of marriage, charging him with extreme cruelty.

After her divorce, she starred for several months in the musical "Hello Dolly," in Las Vegas and made television commercials.

Easing Seen In Shortage Of Gasoline

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

There are increasing signs this week that the gasoline shortage is easing in the United States.

Production of gasoline is up. The increase in consumption this year is not as great as had been forecast.

Some stations are staying open longer hours for the first time in weeks. Allotments to stations have been increased by some suppliers.

But a UPI survey of conditions around the country also showed that supplies still are short in some areas— particularly the Northwest. In Ohio, officials are talking about the possibility of government imposed rationing.

BRIGHT SIDE

On the optimistic side, there have been these developments:

—The Independent Petroleum Association of America (IPAA) said it had expected demand to be 6 or 7 per cent higher this year than last. As of late June, the demand was running around 5 per cent higher.

—The National Petroleum Refiners Association (NPRA) said American refineries have raised their production to 94 per cent of capacity and have announced plans to expand their capacity by some 2 million barrels a day within three years' time.

—Arco, Texaco, Gulf, Exxon and Shell have announced they can make more gasoline available to dealers this summer than originally had been expected. Arco had planned to hold its dealers to 96 per cent of the gasoline they received last year. Now its Eastern dealers will get 104 per cent.

LONGER HOURS

—The Georgia Motor Club surveyed stations and found some have increased hours of operation for the first time in weeks. In Texas, an American Automobile Association (AAA) survey determined "the gasoline crunch has taken a turn for the better." The survey showed only half the stations that had held customers to a purchase limit were still limiting sales this week. Thirty-three per cent were limiting their hours, compared to 40 per cent the previous week.

—A Texaco station on the outskirts of Washington, D.C., an area that has been one of the hardest hit by shortages, put up a sign a couple of weeks ago saying, "Sorry, Gas Shortage, Now Closing Sunday." The sign came down during the past week.

MOTORISTS STRANDED

However, continued problems were reported in the Pacific Northwest. Oregon State Police said many motorists got stranded for the night during the past weekend when they ran out of gas short of the only major station open between Portland and Albany.

Washington State had a similar situation between Olympia and Vancouver. Part of the problem in Washington was traced to a "gas war" last year. Brand name stations asked for shorter supplies in 1972 because of bargains offered by independents. This year, many of the independents were out of business, and the big oil company stations were getting only 90 per cent of last year's shortened supplies, far short of demand.

Man Drowns

Doctor Develops Artificial Liver

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — A 28-year-old physician-scientist yesterday said he has developed the world's first artificial liver by harnessing the capabilities of living liver cells.

Dr. Kenneth N. Matsumura of the private Immunity Research Laboratory said development of an artificial liver had long been believed a near impossibility because, unlike the kidney and the heart, the liver has a variety of complex functions.

Liver failure is one of the most common causes of death. An estimated six to eight million Americans suffer from varying stages of progressive liver failure.

The liver not only detoxifies poisons and filters body waste products, but also synthesizes blood clotting proteins and plays a vital role in the metabolism of fats and sugars.

Matsumura said his booksize, several-pound invention, called an hepatic support device, is designed to be used outside the body, like an artificial kidney, processing blood from a patient and returning the treated blood.

Matsumura said he has put in nearly 10 years on research for the device. He has been granted a patent on it, clearing the way for clinical trials, he said.

He said all the technologies necessary to make the invention practical have been perfected and a small-scale production of the device was underway to supply researchers.

Matsumura, a graduate of the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco, started conducting medical research at the age of 14 and published his first professional paper at 19.

F111s Pound Reds In Phnom Penh Area

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — U.S. bombe)s pounded suspected Communist targets within 15 miles of Phnom Penh late yesterday and early today in what residents described as the heaviest such raids in at least a week.

Most of the strikes, official sources said, came within 20 miles north, south and east of the capital.

It was the 119th consecutive day of U.S. bombing in Cambodia, the only country in Indochina with no formal ceasefire agreement.

Cambodian military authorities said bodies of 20 Communists were found after American strikes 15 miles south of the capital. Military men told newsmen the raids were carried out by F111 fighterbombers flying out of Thailand.

The Cambodian military command also announced the safe arrival of 104 trucks loaded with rice and wood and 34 smaller vehicles yesterday in a convoy from the deepwater port of Kompong Som.

Flournoy Wants To Buy Out Bonds With New Tax

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Although calling the one-cent state sales tax "ludicrously unjust," Controller Houston Flournoy has renewed his suggestion to use money produced by the tax to buy out some of the state's bonds.

"This course of action represents a sound investment for the future; $500 million in canceled bonds could save the taxpayers about $250 million in interest costs on 10-year bonds and $500 million on 20-year bonds," Flournoy said yesterday.

The controller and Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post both previously recommended that at least some of the surplus be used to cancel sale of construction bonds.

Gov. Ronald Reagan rejected the proposal on largely philosophical grounds, saying that the 1973 taxpayers should not be required to pay for a building that would be used by future Californians and that those citizens also should help finance public works.

In his statement yesterday Flournoy said there "can be no justification for this sales tax increase under existing circumstances" in reference to the state's $829 million budget surplus from the 1972-73 fiscal year.

The boost in the tax went into effect at 12:01 a.m. Sunday after Reagan vetoed a bill which would have delayed it for six months and provided a one-time income tax rebate of 30 per cent.

The sales tax increase was enacted last year to help pay for the state's new property tax relief-school aid program. When the $829 million surplus emerged later, virtually everybody agreed a delay was in order.

But last minute efforts to reach a compromise between lawmakers, particularly Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, and Reagan failed to produce an agreement.

Pacific Fleet's Commander Will Retire

HONOLULU (UPI) — Adm. Bernard Clarey, commander in chief of the U.S. Pacific Fleet, announced yesterday he will retire from the Navy on Sept. 30.

Adm. Clarey said he will turn over his command to Adm. Maurice Weisner, who will come to Hawaii from duty as the vice chief of naval operations in Washington.

The fleet, deployed over a 94-million square-mile area, includes more than 60 shore commands, 280 ships, 2,000 aircraft and a quarter-million sailors and marines.

Clarey, commander of the fleet since December 1970, is a native of Oskaloosa, Iowa, who served as a lieutenant on the submarine Dolphin in Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Condition Better

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI) — A man bitten by a huge rattlesnake during a religious ceremony was in satisfactory condition today following surgery, according to a spokesman at Erlanger Hospital.

The hospital had described the condition of Murl Bass, 35, as critical late yesterday. Bass was bitten on the right hand as he reached for a five-foot diamondback rattler Sunday at the little Holiness Church of God in Jesus Name near Newport.

Flood Damage

MONTPELIER, Vt. (UPI) — Floods caused an estimated $18 million in damage to New Hampshire and Vermont, including widespread destruction of the corn and hay crop.

The weekend floods, spawned by torrential rains, left 11 persons dead in the two states.

Fighting Goes On

SAIGON (UPI) — The South Vietnamese government command reported today that heavy combat in Kontum Province is rounding out its first month, with no end in sight. It reported minor fighting in Pleiku Province in the Central Highlands.

All-day skirmishing yesterday near Kontum, 260 miles north of Saigon, killed 10 Communist troops and wounded six government soldiers, the command said.

The Saigon command said one Communist soldier was killed in an exchange of small arms fire eight miles north of Pleiku.

Kosygin Action Is Big Surprise

VIENNA (UPI) — Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin laid a wreath at the monument of the unknown Russian soldier in downtown Vienna today and startled security men by wading into a crowd and walking the two blocks back to his hotel.

Kosygin arrived at the monument in the Schwarzenberg Platz by limousine from a previous engagement and laid a large wreath of red roses according to his schedule.

But, instead of stepping back inside his car, Kosygin walked to the small crowd, shook hands and exchanged greetings. "It was the first time I have seen him smiling," said bystander Magda Schneider. "He looked really nice."

Spray Recalled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration yesterday ordered the recall of Pertussin Nighttime Medicated Vaporizer Spray, which has been linked to 18 deaths in five years.

The maker of the product, Cheseborough-Ponds Inc. of Greenwich, Conn., told the FDA it would comply with the order. It said it already had stopped sales.

Calley Ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attempts by attorneys for Lt. William L. Calley Jr. to make the government disclose any White House involvement in the investigation of the My Lai massacre have been turned down by the highest court of military law.

The U.S. Court of Military Appeals ruled yesterday that the attorneys presented a case that was "too insubstantial and tenuously founded" July 18 when they tried to force disclosure of the role played in the My Lai probe by White House investigators John J. Caulfield and Anthony F. Ulasewicz.

Both Caulfield and Ulasewicz have been linked to the Watergate cover-up.

Resistance Urged

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (UPI) — The second largest political party in Uruguay called on its followers last night to take up arms to resist the government of President Juan Maria Bordaberry, who has ruled for one week by decree with the approval of the military.

It urged them to take up "arms to defend the republic."

In the 1971 election, the National party polled about 668,000 votes, a close second to the 681,000 polled by Colorado party led by Bordaberry.

Storm Building

MIAMI (UPI) — Tropical Storm Alice built its strength to 60 miles an hour today and drifted toward Bermuda, where residents were warned to prepare for a possible "direct hit."

Alice's winds increased from 50 miles an hour to 60 m.p.h. and the National Hurricane Center in Miami said "environmental conditions favor a slight increase in strength today."

Cabinet Shakeup

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — President Salvador Allende's government said yesterday he would overhaul his cabinet today in action coming only hours after congress refused his request to place the country under martial law for 90 days.

An official statement did not say what the shakeup involved, but there were reports Allende would name several military men to cabinet posts, as he did once before in a critical period.

Irish Talks

BELFAST (UPI) — Leaders of major Roman Catholic and Protestant parties in Northern Ireland's new regional assembly said yesterday they have made progress toward peaceful cooperation and have rejected the advocates of violence.

Sources said the political leaders conferred with Northern Ireland Secretary William Whitelaw and agreed to hold the assembly's first meeting later this month at Stormont, home of the former government.

Peron Ailing

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — A prominent heart specialist visited Juan D. Peron at his home last night but declined afterward to say what was ailing the 77-year-old former president.

Peron, who returned to Argentina two weeks ago after 18 years in exile, has not been seen in public in more than a week.

Grant For Storm-Damaged Mill Valley Streets Cut

The Mill Valley City Council learned last night that it may not get enough state funds to repair all the city streets severely damaged by last winter's rains.

City Mgr. William H. Cunningham told the council that the state Office of Emergency Services had told him recently that the city will get $195,000 less than the requested $466,000 grant.

Cunningham said he will continue plans to begin the 15 repair projects submitted to the state until he gets word on which ones will not be completely paid for.

If not enough money is granted, he said the city will have to cut back on some projects or come up with money itself to pay for the repairs.

A delegation of senior citizens talked the city council last night into promising to build a new sidewalk on Montford Avenue.

The council unanimously approved the idea of the walkway and voted to seek county funds to help build the project, which the city staff estimated would cost about $5,000.

The discussion led off with a plea from Howard Pease of Homestead Terrace, a senior citizens housing complex on Linden Lane, just off Montford. About 10 other seniors were with him in the audience.

Pease complained that the present path running through a ditch from Linden Lane to Miller Avenue is dangerous for older persons walking from Homestead Terrace to Mill Valley.

"Montford in the summer is a boulevard with cars coming and going to the beaches," he said. "In the middle of the path is a gully that runs with water in winter."

Councilman Robert E. Burton argued that the county should help pay for the repairs since the walkway was used by many county residents and since Montford is bordered partially by unincorporated land. He also suggested getting homeowners along Montford to help bear the cost.

"But it's a city sidewalk used night and day," replied Pease.

Mayor Jean S. Barnard told Pease it was a city policy not to build sidewalks for any street. But the council went ahead and approved embarking on the project.

Plan Group Formation Is Approved

The Mill Valley City Council decided last night to appoint a 36-member committee to help city staff and consultants write a general plan.

The council unanimously approved plans for the committee, which was described by Tom W. Newton, director of community development, and agreed to begin appointments at its meeting July 16.

Newton said he and Sedway-Cooke, the city's planning consultant, want a steering committee and three subcommittees, one dealing with environmental quality, one with land use and housing and one dealing with public services and facilities.

According to Newton, the committee would begin a two-month "reconnaissance survey" to study elements of the general plan. Joint public hearings of the committee and the planning commission, city council and architectural advisory committee would follow.

He suggested that planning commissioners and councilmen be appointed to each subcommittee as liaison members.

The Mill Valley City Council also:

SEWERS — Set rates for previously approved sewer service charge and sewer connection fee. They include a minimum monthly charge of $3.40 per month per single-family home and a minimum connection fee of $400 per single-family home. A public hearing will be held Aug. 6 on how the charges and fees should be assessed against single-family homes and apartments.

PARK — Approved an agreement with Pacific Gas and Electric Co. on leasing for use as a park a parcel of land in the Enchanted Knolls subdivision.

OLD MONTE VISTA — Was asked by a resident to consider opening up Old Monte Vista Road, now a fire road, as a hiking and biking trail. The council asked the city attorney to study what rights the public had to use of the road.

BID — Postponed until July 16 the awarding of a bid to W. R. Ford for resurfacing Montford, Molino and Edgewood Avenues. The council decided to ask for county help in paying for the $33,703 repair job.

BUDGET — Set the next budget hearing tonight at 8 o'clock in the city library and July 17 for final budget review.

APPEAL — Set July 10 as date to hear the appeal by Enchanted Knolls homeowners of the granting of a use permit by the planning commission to Shelter Ridge. Master plans for Shelter Ridge and for the moderate income housing development Shelter Hill are also to be discussed.

CLOSED MEETING — Held a closed session to discuss salary negotiations being held with employees.

Voters Will Decide Fate Of Subdivision

The Petaluma City Council last night set Sept. 11 for a special election for voters to decide on a controversial west-side subdivision.

Responding to a raft of petitions signed by 1,805 voters, the council agreed to let residents decide if Arthur Condiotti Enterprises should be permitted to build the subdivision on I Street Extension at Sunnyslope Road.

The special election will specifically ask voters if they want to repeal the subdivision zoning granted to Condiotti by the city council on April 17.

Residents of the area strongly contested the zoning and tentative map application on the basis that current street and drainage problems would be compounded by the new development.

Some councilmen grumbled about spending $6,000 on the special election and complained that whichever side loses will no doubt bring a lawsuit and force the final decision in the courts.

The Petaluma City Council Also:

SALARIES — Approved salary increases for management employees ranging from 5 to 7.5 per cent. City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer also received a 5 per cent boost to bring his annual salary to $27,780.

ANNEXATION — Approved the annexation of Casa Grande Junior-Senior High School and land surrounding it.

APARTMENTS — Approved the tax transfer of 36 apartment unit permits formerly owned by Milton Forman to the new owner, Camille Enterprises. The firm can now build 87 units at Keokuk Street near Magnolia Avenue. It had previously received permission to build 51 units.

ZONING — Approved planned unit zoning for property at 14 Himan Street and 15 and 17 Fair Street where a duplex and single home are planned.

CONNECTIONS — Referred to the planning commission the request of John J. Clement for a sewer line connection for four lots on the westerly end of Morningsun Drive.

SPRINKLERS — Approved plans to install a fire alarm and sprinkler system in the city jail at a maximum cost of $870.

CLERK — Heard that City Clerk Lillian Nommsen will retire in August of 1974 and not next month as originally planned.

GIFT RETURN — Heard that $1,000 of the $7,500 gift to the city from the Petaluma Rotary Club for equipment at La Tercera Park has been returned unused. Members of the Petaluma Valley Homeowners Association lowered costs by providing free labor.

MEETING — Adjourned to the next regular meeting on July 16 at 7:30 p.m.

Classified Ad Award To Lehman

The highest award of the Western Classified Advertising Association has been presented to Carl R. Lehman of the Independent-Journal.

The American Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers, meeting in Long Beach last week, announced Lehman's selection for the award for "most outstanding contribution" to the field. It has been awarded eight times in its 13-year history. Lehman was selected by a panel of past recipients.

Lehman is a director of the advertising managers group and served as president of its western branch in 1968-9.

He has also authored a chapter on promotion for a college textbook "Principles and Practices of Classified Advertising," which will be published soon by the national managers' association.

Lehman has been classified advertising manager of the Independent-Journal for 16 years. Previously he was manager and assistant manager, respectively, of classified advertising for the Santa Rosa Press Democrat and the Long Beach Independent Press-Telegram.

Another Round Set On Courts

Trustees of the Reed Union School District will discuss again tonight the long-debated proposal that the district and Tiburon enter into a joint powers agreement to build two public tennis courts at Del Mar School.

Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello said he will recommend that the district pay $3,000 towards site preparation for the courts while the city picks up the rest of the cost.

Giovanniello said that the district would like to use the courts for student classes for a few hours during school days. But he said that whenever they were free in the daytime, the public could use them.

In the past the district requested reservation of daytime use for students, and the city has objected.

Trustees will also elect new officers for 1973-74 when they meet at 8 p.m. at Del Mar.

New Tax Legal Under Freeze

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The one per cent hike in the California sales tax is legal under the price freeze, according to the Cost of Living Council.

A council spokesman said today that state and local taxes are exempt from the freeze since they are not considered "prices" within the meaning of the Economic Stabilization Act.

The ruling not only applies to sales taxes, but to property and general use taxes on the state and local level, the council official said.

Bird Deaths Are Blamed On Botulism

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — More than 200 birds in the Kern National Wildlife Refuge have died of botulism, the state Department of Fish and Game reported yesterday.

Department biologists said the waterfowl losses were confined to a single 90-acre field just south of the Kern-Tulare county line.

The field in question was drained as a precaution against the spread of the disease, a spokesman said.

The spokesman also said aircraft and airboats were being used in surveillance and a control work in the southern San Joaquin Valley for other possible botulism outbreaks.

The spokesman said an estimated 6,000 waterfowl were feeding on the pre-irrigated lands and there were no indications of botulism in the basin.

The department said a change this year in farming practices in the area resulted in water remaining on the fields only a few days, probably not long enough for conditions to develop that would promote botulism.

AFTERMATH — The twisted wreckage of a 1955 Cadillac, involved in three accidents in San Rafael yesterday, rests on Grand Avenue next to the pickup truck which it struck last. San Rafael police arrested Dorothy Jean Sample, 47, of 10 Pilgrim Way, San Rafael, for a variety of offenses after the accidents yesterday which resulted in critical injury of a 75-year-old San Rafael man.

Clerk's Errand Contributes To Theft Of Coats

Two women who sent a sales clerk into the front of a clothing store while they helped themselves to four leather jackets escaped with the goods, Marin sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

Officers said the women, described as dressed to blend in with other shoppers, entered Carlton's Village Sports Wear in the Strawberry Town and Country Village shopping center Wednesday and asked a clerk to fetch an item from the front window.

While his back was turned, the man later told deputies, the women apparently took the coats, valued at $340, but he didn't notice they were missing until later.

Probe Continues Into Pot Crop

No charge has been filed in Marin Municipal Court against two San Rafael men arrested Thursday when officers allegedly stumbled on a marijuana crop growing in their back yard.

The Marin district attorney's office said it would investigate further in the case of Conor Joseph Fennessy, 18, and Marion William Hester, 22.

San Rafael police arrested the pair when they discovered what they said were 15 marijuana plants growing in a cement fishpond.

Lack Of Quorum Cancels Meeting

A special meeting of the Marin Municipal Water District board, scheduled for last night, was not held due to lack of a quorum.

The session has been rescheduled to 7:30 p.m. next Monday.

At that time directors will consider what to do about the district's surplus water agreements, continue discussion of which water supply project the district should present to the voters in November and talk about ways to end water wastage in the district.

Engineer Resigns From Novato Post

John Haug, associate civil engineer with the Novato public works department announced today he has resigned to become development coordinator for Kirkwood Meadows, near Lake Tahoe.

Haug's resignation was the second in the department this week following an announcement yesterday by City Mgr. Charles A. Brown that Public Works Director Clifford E. Temps would resign by the end of this month.

Land Commission Agency Supported

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — A proposed New Mexico Land Use Commission has been endorsed by a state legislative committee.

The Environmental Health Study Committee said a state commission should be created to oversee uncontrolled development and block any development w h i c h might be detrimental to the state's environment.

Man, 75, Badly Hurt, 4 Cars Hit In Spree

A 47-year-old San Rafael woman went on a hit-and-run spree yesterday according to San Rafael police, and left a 75-year-old man critically injured.

Booked into Marin County was Dorothy Jean Sample of 10 Pilgrim Way, on suspicion of hit-and-run driving, driving under influence of a nonnarcotic drug and battery on a police officer.

She was to appear today in Marin Municipal Court and was held in lieu of $10,000 bail.

The critically injured man, Edward E. McElroy of 314 Glen Park Avenue in San Rafael, was trapped between two parked vehicles which were struck in the final phase of the incident. He was reported to have compound fractures of both legs at Marin General Hospital today.

According to police reports, Mrs. Sample was involved in an initial accident at Second and G streets and immediately drove away from the scene. Several police units were alerted to a description of her 1955 Cadillac and a patrol unit began following her as she drove east on Second Street.

After turning onto Union Street, police attempted to overtake her car when warning lights and siren were ignored. The police car was rammed when it pulled in front of the Cadillac.

The Sample car then backed away and proceeded west on Mission Avenue until it was involved in the third accident after turning onto Grand Avenue. Police said her Cadillac struck the rear of a parked pickup truck, shoving it forward into another and trapping McElroy between the two.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Courts Won't Aid Gamblers

Harold Gambel was what you might call a pinball freak. He'd stop in at his favorite Burbank bar before going to work and play the machines. Then he'd stop on the way home. That wouldn't have been so bad but Harold had an unjustified faith in his skill. He lost. And kept on losing until he'd paid over to Reno La Svegus, the bar owner, a little more than $25,000.

Then Harold got the idea he'd been had. Like maybe crooked machines. He found proof that Reno really had been "fixing" his pinballs. He promptly sued for return of his money.

"Reno is an out-and-out crook!" he told the court. "He shouldn't be allowed to keep my money."

"Crook or not," Reno replied, "Harold was equally at fault. Gambling is illegal in California, and so he's 'in pari delicto.'"

The court had to rule in favor of Reno. "Where both parties are equally at fault," it said in effect, "the law will not aid either of them, but leave them where they are. It will not settle their dispute."

So whether the game was honest or crooked didn't matter. It was illegal and Harold couldn't recover his losses.

Of course he could — and probably did — report Reno to the Disrict Attorney and the IRS.

Then there was Geoffrey Gull, who liked nothing better than a friendly little game of blackjack with his old buddies. And Geoffrey too dropped a friendly bundle. At least, until he discovered the old buddies were using marked cards. He sues — and got nowhere.

The court wouldn't listen to him. All the parties acted illegally, it said. The law will not draw lines between a little and a lot of illegality, where all the people are acting together. It simply will not try to decide who cheated most.

Gambling is a contract (I agree to pay you if I lose; you pay me if you lose) but a gambling contract can't be enforced in 49 of our 50 states. There are other kinds of illegal contracts and most of them can't be enforced either.

Santa Monica Park Is Opened

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Santa Monica Park, the largest city park in the nation at 4,100 acres, opened to the public yesterday, climaximg 10 years of planning.

Originally, plans called for a 25,000-acre park, but the size was scaled down because of lack of money.

Overnight camping may be permitted in the mountain area sometime in the future, park officials said. The park is bounded by Mulholland Drive, which wends its way to the sea along the crest of the Santa Monica Mountains, the San Diego Freeway, Sunset Boulevard and Topanga Boulevard.

San Francisco To Update Sewer Plan

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Without debate, the board of supervisors adopted a master plan yesterday to bring San Francisco into compliance with sewage standards set by the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

Supervisor Robert Mendelsohn said the sewage disposal project would take 15 years and cost $750 million, of which 87.5 per cent will come from the federal and state government and the remainder from a bond issue.

Celebration Set For Marinwood

The community's 8th annual July 4 celebration begins at 8 a.m. with a tennis tournament, and continues through the day with a pancake breakfast, ice cream social, watermelon feed, water sports contests, and the traditional picnic races and games.

Bielser replied the new levy represents an "equitable distribution of the tax load," since citizens already living in San Rafael have paid for existing services available to newcomers.

He was backed by a parade of citizens, who said the tax would not discourage new municipal development.

After some debate, the council approved the tax and agreed to use resulting revenues for parks and recreation improvements, despite suggestions it be allocated for general fund expenses or library improvements.

Fallout From Chinese A-Bomb Will Hit Coast

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Radioactive fallout from China's latest hydrogen bomb test will start drifting across the northwest United States late tonight or early tomorrow an Atomic Energy Commission spokesman said today.

Automatic detectors will measure the radioactivity of the fallout from the June 27 test and atomic scientists will analyze the results.

Unless the fallout is unexpectedly intense, the readings probably will not be released until Thursday, the spokesman said.

Nixon Watergate Papers Wanted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Watergate Committee, which has received word it won't be able to question President Nixon himself about the scandal, is seeking more White House documents related to the case.

SAMUEL DASH
Seeking more documents

Samuel Dash, the investigating committee's chief counsel, said yesterday the committee is negotiating with the White House for files of former presidential aides, news summaries on the Watergate affair prepared for Nixon, and background briefing papers on Watergate prepared for Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler.

Dash expressed confidence the White House would cooperate. He said his staff is especially interested in documents of John W. Dean III, the former White House counsel; John D. Ehrlichman, former chief domestic affairs adviser; former Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman; and Charles W. Colson, former special counsel.

The White House made it clear yesterday that Nixon himself would not go before the Senate committee. Ziegler, in a briefing with reporters at San Clemente, Calif., flatly ruled out testimony by Nixon, written or oral, before the committee or an appearance by Nixon before the Watergate grand jury.

Ziegler said Nixon would remain silent on the issue until the current phase of Senate hearings ends in August. He said the President then would discuss it in an "appropriate forum."

Office Building Plans Approved In Tiburon

The Tiburon Planning Commission last night unanimously approved the precise plans for an office building at 88 Main Street, next door to city hall.

According to Richard G. Arjo, director of community development, developer Fred G. Zelinsky has proposed to make way for the building by moving an historic "ark" further down Main Street. The "arks" are six or seven old houseboats now standing on stilts near city hall.

Arjo said Zelinsky's architects told the commission that the "arks" would be saved and remodeled and may be turned into boutiques in the future.

The commission set landscaping conditions for the property.

The Tiburon Planning Commission also:

LANDSCAPING — Approved an amendment to the zoning ordinance requiring landscaping maintenance bonds from single-family home owners.

REMODELING — Approved an amendment to the zoning ordinance to allow owners of homes which do not conform to zoning regulations to add rooms to their homes.

REDEVELOPMENT — Asked the city council to meet with the commission on July 11 to discuss the boundaries for a survey area for a proposed downtown redevelopment project.

Novato Man Arrested After An Armed Holdup

David John Brower Jr., 22, of 15 Sunny Hills Drive, was booked into Marin County Jail and held in lieu of $10,000 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Police said Brower is the man who entered Bill and Beth's grocery store at 1513 San Anselmo Avenue at about 2 p.m. yesterday, lifted his shirt to expose a pistol, and demanded the day's receipts. The bandit fled in a green Pinto after taking about $130, police said.

Police, receiving from a witness a partial license number of the car used by the robber, fed the information into a computer and were led to a Mill Valley address. Police questioned a landlord at the residence, then a relative of the woman who owned the car they sought, and were given a Novato address to which Brower and a girl friend had moved.

Novato police staked out the Sunny Hills Drive home, then followed Brower when he left in a green Pinto. Stopped on Seventh Sreet in Novato at 7:20 p.m. and held for San Anselmo officers, Brower said he had robbed the store, and produced a pistol, according to police.

Brower claimed he had lost the cash taken in the robbery, San Anselmo police said.

Deadline Nearing For GI Benefits

Education and training benefits under the "GI Bill" will expire May 31, 1974 for thousands of Vietnam and post-Korean War era veterans, county service officer James V. Burdick said today.

Burdick said most other educational benefits will be cut off next May for veterans discharged prior to June 1, 1966, under a law which allows each veteran eight years to complete his training.

The law did not include flight, apprentice, on-the-job or farm cooperative training. An eight-year time limit for this kind of training was written into law about a year later so its cutoff date will not take effect until September, 1975.

Petaluma Man Critically Hurt At Building Site

A Petaluma man was critically injured yesterday at a San Rafael construction site when a forklift overturned, trapping him under the machinery and a load of sheet rock.

Dan G. Koepple, 23, of 897 Fair Avenue in Petaluma, was reported in critical condition today at Marin General Hospital with a crushed chest and a head injury following the accident.

San Rafael police reported that Koepple was standing on the sheet rock load on the forklift driven by James Hatcher when the vehicle slid over an embankment at a residential construction site across from 49 Mahogany Drive.

No other details of the accident nor cause for the forklift's overturn were given by police.

Trash Rates Are Set By Tam Board

The Tamalpais Community Services District board, which has decided to go into the garbage collection business, last night established a collection rate of $19.20 for its first eight months service, from Nov. 1 to July 1, 1974.

District Mgr. Leonard M. Mitchell said the district will take over operation of the garbage service when the district's contract with Henry's Service of Stinson Beach expires Oct. 31.

Residents will be charged a flat rate of $2.40 per month for pickup of from one to three cans per week, along with a small amount of debris.

(Currently Henry's Serivce charges $2.35 per month for one can and had proposed to raise the price to $3.)

The service district board also set a sewer service charge of $45 for 1973-74, unchanged from this year's charge.

A public hearing on the garbage and sewer rates is set for 8 p.m. August 7.

In other business, the board also approved a $220,502 budget for 1973-74, approximately $60,000 higher than this year's $160,302 spending program.

Mitchell said the increase is due chiefly to hikes in the district's parks and recreation budget, up from $32,850 to $81,150. Most of the additional money will go for park acquisition, improvements to land purchased for recreational use and development of a bicycle trail in the valley.

Other expenditures in the budget are $18,400 for administration; $35,752 for salaries and $84,200 for the district's sewer service program.

Mitchell said the district has not yet computed its tax rate, but said it should not be much more than the current rate of 35 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

A hearing on the preliminary budget is also scheduled for Aug. 7.

Tiburon Open Space Action Angers Board

Tamalpais High School District trustees last night accused Tiburon City Council of "unprecedented and highhanded" action in rezoning its future high school site to an open space zone. The trustees threatened legal action.

Administrative assistant Edward Neumeier said the board decided to ask the county counsel to advise it as to court action because the rezoning devalued district lands.

The district paid $439,993 for the 52-acre site above the Church of the Good Shepherd in 1965. Two bond issues aimed at building a high school there have since failed, and there is no plan to build now.

Last week the Tiburon council put the site into a new open space zone, and refused to exempt it, saying that school district voters could override the zoning by a two-thirds vote — thus allowing a school to be built.

However, Neumeier said trustees complained that anything that restricts future use of the land devalues it, and an election was "no protection" for the district's investment.

Trustee Bette Wallace decried the fact that it's impossible to appeal Tiburon's rezoning, said Neumeier, and asked if the city was prepared to purchase the site.

Neumeier said the district doesn't know the current market value of the land, since it's tax exempt and not subject to to continuing reassessment.

Tamalpais High School District Board Also:

TRUSTEE — Officially seated newly-elected trustee Lotte Schiller, but delayed her formal "swearing-in" to the July 16 meeting at 8 p.m. in the Redwood faculty lounge so her children can be present.

MARIN CITY — Set a meeting between Mrs. Schiller, Robert M. Corlett, business manager Frank Cassou and representatives of the Marin City Community Services District for Thursday at 4:30 p.m. in the district office to work out local recreational uses for the Marin City high school site.

ELECTION — Elected trustee Jerrold M. Ladar chairman of the board, Bette Wallace clerk, and Mrs. Schiller trustee representative.

MEMBERSHIPS — Agreed to join the Association of California School Administrators for $440, the Marin County School Boards Association for $35 and the National School Boards Association for $250; deferred action on joining other institutions, particularly the California School Boards Association, which has a membership fee of $1,173 a year, saying it didn't think the group did enough to justify the money.

PERSONNEL — Accepted the resignation of Redwood math teacher George Tomlinson, currently on leave; and agreed to pay Laurence Moyer and Vincent Boyle $10.20 an hour as summer school deans at Tam Hi and Drake — Redwood is using regular administrators in the same positions to save money.

CARPENTERS — Delayed action on cutting the three district carpenters' work week from 40 to 36 hours, pending news on new union pay scales.

ADJOURNED — Set its next meeting, July 16, 8 p.m. in the Redwood faculty lounge.

Railroad To Seek Sausalito Permit

A railroad company which wants to operate a narrow gauge steam railroad from the northern city limits of Sausalito to Johnson Street downtown will apply for a conditional use permit to the Sausalito Planning Commission at 8 p.m. Thursday in city hall.

The Sausalito-Richardson Bay Railroad Company is hoping to establish the railroad shuttle service — which might eventually be used to bring people from the proposed northern parking facility to downtown — along the old Northwestern Pacific right-of-way.

Corte Madera Wants All To See Open-Space Plan

The Corte Madera Town Council last night continued for two weeks a public hearing on an open-space element for the town's revised general plan so that documents and maps can be viewed by the public. (Another Corte Madera Town Council story, page 1.)

The open space element — which designated much of the town's undeveloped land for recreational use and open space — was described by members of the audience as "a wonderful document."

Councilmen agreed, but decided to get more copies of the plan element and its accompanying map prepared, and have them ready for public perusal at the town hall and the Corte Madera regional library, before the July 16 council meeting.

Town planning consultant Tom Cooke said highpoints of the plan include maintaining the Tiburon Ridge, the North Ridge, the Taralara site, a strip above the Quarry site and the bay front in permanent open space. Shoreline recreation was also envisaged on the edges of the Heerdt marsh and the Muzzi properties.

Plans include a small park next to the All Faiths Church and a recreational site on Paradise Drive in East Corte Madera. It was hoped the use of school grounds could be broadened beyond simply students' use, said Cooke, and a trail system for foot and bike traffic was proposed on the abandoned railroad right of way, part of a network of such trails through the whole town.

Cooke explained that land could be acquired through zoning and direct acquisition. Saying that all the sites remaining undeveloped in Corte Madera "haven't been built on for good reasons — site problems" he said these problems aren't reflected in current zoning.

He proposed the town introduce new zoning districts, including a "natural habitat protection district". This would preserve areas of high natural habitat value, while allowing a small portion of the site to be developed so its owner wasn't deprived of his land's use.

He also suggested a "land capacity ordinance" which would broaden slope policies, and inclde high seismic, flood or landslide conditions in setting densities.

Councilman Edward W. Colthurst asked that copies of the plan be sent to all the town's homeowners associations for their comments before the council considers it at 7:30 p.m. on July 16 in the townhall.

The Corte Madera Town Council Also:

HIDDEN VALLEY — Heard from town atty. Albert Bianchi that a court case over the planning commission's recision of its approval for tentative maps for Hidden Valley, unit 5, will be heard July 13, at 9 a.m. in Marin County Superior Court; the complaint was filed by the FHA Company, versus individual members of the commission.

MADERA DEL PRESIDIO — Referred to the planning commission Larry P. Weingarth's appeal of acceptance, July 11, of the Madera Del Presidio's environmental impact report because the commission didn't allow 30 days for public comment on the document before taking action; public works director Arthur Morrison was also directed to catalog the changes in a new tentative map for the controversial development after town atty. Bianchi questioned councilmen on their intent in exempting it from the current building moratorium, and found little agreement.

STREET TREE — Authorized chopping down a Western maple tree at 47 Chickasaw Court because its roots have spread more than 40 feet and are eating into Kiyoshi Kawahata's house foundations; it will be replaced with another variety with "less vigorous root growth."

CROSSING GUARD — Authorized spending $143 for a crossing guard for half an hour at 8 a.m. and again at noon for the Granada Summer School, starting Thursday until July 20.

CHRISTMAS TREE HILL — Directed town staff and planning consultants Sedway and Cooke to study the board of adjustment's request for a building ban on Christmas Tree Hill until fire and traffic problems are worked out and zoning regulations reviewed; the ridgetop Chapman Park area was included in the direction after the council heard it's up for sale.

SANITARY — Adjourned, then sitting as the board of the sanitary district, approved a sewer construction permit to serve a 20-acre "Paradise Estates" development in Tiburon, north of Trestle Glen on Paradise Drive.

SEWAGE FLOW — Learned from Morrison that a threat by the Ross Valley Sanitary District to "take over maintenance and operation of the flow meter which measures the flow pumped from your district" has been stymied, with Corte Madera merely changing the meter; in its continuing battle with the town, the Ross Valley district complained that Corte Madera exceeded the sewage flow permitted under its contract, on 22 days from November through February.

BUDGET — Decided to consider the Sanitary Commission's plea for $150,000 to upgrade the town's sewers this year at its budget hearing Thursday, at 7:30 p.m. at the town hall.

Home Mortgage Halt Is Ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Field offices of the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) have been ordered to stop issuing home mortgages because Congress failed to renew the National Housing Act.

The FHA said yesterday the suspension applies to housing, apartment and office projects, as well as to Title I loans. The agency said the National Housing Act, which authorized the mortgages, expired Saturday at the end of the fiscal year.

The act cannot be reinstated until at least July 10 when Congress returns from its Independence Day recess. FHA said it assumed the law would be restored. It will continue accepting applications for federally insured mortgages, although it cannot approve any until it again has the authority.

Yanikian Is Guilty In Death Of Turks

SANTA BARBARA (UPI) — Gourgen Yanikian, 77, was found guilty of first degree murder yesterday for shooting to death two Turkish diplomats Jan. 27 to avenge the massacre of Armenians by Turks more than half a century ago.

Yanikian, an author of religious plays and novels and once a wealthy land developer and international engineer, admitted killing Mehmet Baydar, 49, Turkish consul general in Los Angeles, and Baydar's assistant, Bahadir Demir, 30. He testified he thought of it as "destroying two evils."

Savings And Loan Asked To Pay Woman For Door

An elderly Richmond widow who still hasn't been paid for the basement door kicked in by Corte Madera police in March when they cornered a robber, may get her money.

But not from the Corte Madera Town Council.

They would not, as recommended by town staff, reject Mrs. Candelo's claim for $43.09 and refer it to the town's insurance carriers.

Instead, said councilmen, they'd ask Civic Federal Savings and Loan Association to pay up. Town Atty. Albert Bianchi suggested the financial institution would welcome the free publicity.

A series of handwritten letters from Mrs. Candelo detailed her attempts to recoup the damages to her home after two men held up the savings and loan firm on Tamalpais Drive on March 29.

They escaped across the Richmond Bridge with an accomplice and one robber was captured hiding in Mrs. Candelo's basement — which was when police kicked in her door.

Two weeks later Mrs. Candelo wrote to the Corte Madera police, saying she'd like to get her door fixed. The town finance director wrote back saying the town couldn't assume responsibility for damage done by the "intruder."

Mrs. Candelo wrote back in May, saying she considered the robber the intruder, "and he wasn't the one that broke my door."

Mrs. Candelo said she thinks the police and the savings and loan firm — which got all its stolen money back — ought to take care of her door.

Last month, she wrote to the council again, saying she'd been to a lumber firm, after being sick for three weeks, had found a local carpenter, and the whole job could be done for $43.09.

The town council was advised by staff to deny Mrs. Candelo's claim, but councilman Robert J. Flahive asked for different action, saying: "It appears to me this poor lady has got caught up in red tape."

A Possible Chance For Victory: Give Foes Chance To Go Wrong

Test yourself by playing the West cards in today's hand. If you are really a top-notch player you will make a certain "compulsory" play at a certain stage. If you fail to make this play, don't despair. Test your favorite partner with the same hand (if he doesn't read this column and test you first!) and get a belated snicker.

HEART ACTION

You open the jack of hearts from the West hand and continue the suit until your side has taken the first three tricks. So far, so good. You need one more trick to defeat the contract.

At the fourth trick, you or your partner should get out safely with a club. It is now up to declarer to show what he can do.

Declarer naturally leads a small spade from the dummy and finesses with the jack. South continues by—

Just a moment. Which spade did you play from the West hand on that first round of trumps?

Did you follow suit with your lowest trump? If so, don't tell a soul. You have failed the test.

FALSE CARD

In this situation, you must make a compulsory false card. You must play your middle trump, not the lowest trump.

You must try to give declarer the impression that you started with 10-x of trumps. If he believes your story, he will get back to dummy in order to lead the queen of trumps through your partner's king. The queen, king and ace will all fall on the same trick, and your ten of trumps will then be good for the setting trick.

MAKES CONTRACT

If declarer thinks that you started with 10-x-x of trumps, he will lead out the ace of trumps without bothering to play dummy's queen. Your partner's king will fall, and dummy's queen will capture your ten. And now declarer makes his contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - A J 9 6 3
♥ - 5 4 2
♣ - J.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three spades.

This shows about 13 to 16 points, counting distribution as well as high cards, with strong trump support of four or more cards. Partner is expected to try for a slam if he has substantially more than a bare opening bid.

WIPED OUT BY HIGH WINDS

The steel framework of the building housing Mike Brayton Seeds, Inc., lay on the ground after being ripped off by high winds in Ames, Iowa, yesterday. The winds also demolished a section of the concrete block walls of the building. No injuries were reported as a result of the storm.

San Rafael, College Reach Pact

The San Rafael City Council, in what appeared to be a routine and anticlimatic move, last night emerged from closed session to announce it had reached agreement with the Marin Community College District board on the city's controversial redevelopment plan. (Another San Rafael City Council story, page 1.)

Councilmen voted unanimously to sign an accord with the district that provides for the repayment to the district of some of the revenue normally siphoned off under redevelopment. District trustees ratified the agreement last week.

The agreement will be inked, the council said, as soon as all pending suits challenging the redevelopment plan are withdrawn. Although the district board dropped its suit against the project in return for revenue repayment, the status of several companion suits filed by citizens is uncertain, according to City Mgr. William J. Bielser and the redevelopment agency executive director.

Bielser said the agreement reached with the district is "substantially" the same as that made with the San Rafael school system: revenues resulting from an increase of up to 3.8 per cent in assessed valution within the redevelopment area will be returned to the district.

In addition, Bielser said, the accord provides that the district will receive about $142,500 over seven years fro redevelopment revenues that would normally accrue to the county under the agency's agreement with the board of supervisors.

Bielser said supervisors will be asked to amend its agreement ith the city to allow for the shift of funds to the district.

The board was scheduled to consider the matter today, he said.

The city, now apparently at the end of a bitter dispute with the district board over the redevelopment plan, also ended a long battle with the county after agreeing to restrict itself to a $6 million project over seven years and endorsing a complicated formula for repaying taxing agencies for revenue siphoned off.

Long at issue in the redevelopment squabble has been the controversial method of tax incremental financing, whereby a redevelopment agency freezes assessed valuation and applies increased revenue resulting from improvements to repayment of redevelopment bonds.

208 Die In Traffic

PARIS (UPI) — The big vacation rush in France started last weekend and road accidents killed 208 persons in the five-day period, official figures disclosed today.

'Mundane' Duties Of Planners Due Study

The San Rafael City Council last night called for a "comprehensive review of the goals and objectives" of the city planning commission, saying the agency has become bogged down in routine.

The council, agreeing with a staff report that the commission agenda is routinely "loaded with mundane subjects" that prevent commissioners from dealing with long range planning matters, told the city administration to streamline the agenda and develop proposals for delegating some of the agency's authority, perhaps to another commission.

Routine zoning decisions might be handled by city staff, and an environmental review commission might be created to deal with other planning matters, according to Raymond L. Meador, city manager assistant.

The council, backing a claim by colleague Lawrence E. Mulryan that the planning commission needs assistance because it has become "bogged down," told staff to develop a proposal for presentation next month.

The San Rafael City Council also:

COURTHOUSE SQUARE — Decided that contrary to planning commission ruling, McKeon Construction Co. should be held to its original commitment to create brick rather than aggregate-and-concrete walkways, a change sought by the firm to save $24,000. Postponed was decision on planning commission approval of a switch from natural stone to concrete for the development's garden walls.

ROSS STREET — Upheld an appeal by Stephen Baker of planning commission approval of up to a 24-unit apartment complex proposed by the Tamalpais Land and Development Co. for three lots on Ross Street. Councilmen agreed with a parade of neighbors that the proposal should await completion of the city's general plan.

FINANCE COMMITTEE — Adopted an ordinance abolishing the city finance committee and called for a "new technique" for review of city bills. Councilman Fred E. Jensen, who opposed the move, noted the responsibility will now pass to staff, and accused council colleagues of "collecting wages without doing any work."

FORTUNE — At the request of, Deputy Police Chief Thomas L. Stephenson, deferred the repeal of aging city ordinances outlawing fortune telling, and the practice of hypnotism and phrenology in the city, pending the drafting of "alternative controls".

BOARD — Put over action on an appointment to the city's board of review. Louis Milani and Armon Barsamian have applied for the seat vacated by Howard Levenson.

SURVIVAL — Put over to July 16 a request by Survival, Inc. for a grant of $2,500 after a declaration by Jensen that the city charter limits "gifts of public funds" to $1,500. Council colleagues noted the charter sets the $1,500 lid on promotional and advertising expenses, and said the city might legally allocate the money by contracting with the firm.

O'TOOLE — Commended Thomas R. O'Toole, who did not seek reappointment to the city planning commission after an 11-year tenure. O'Toole was not present.

OPTION — At a cost of $350, extended for six months an option to buy eight lots near Wintergreen Terrace.

SURPLUS — Said the city will participate in the Federal Surplus Property Program, which allows the city to obtain federal surplus property at "cost of handling" for civil defense use.

JOINT POWERS — Approved a joint powers agreement between the city and the Marinwood Community Services District for mutual fire protection in the Mont Marin and Twelve Oak Hills neighborhoods. The agreement also provides for some mutual training sessions and limited sharing of equipment and facilities.

ASSESSMENT DISTRICT — Said the city will go to court to force the Francisco Co., Holiday Magic and Equitable Development Co. to pay assessments in connection with the East San Rafael Assessment District. The three firms owe a total $22,264 tab, according to the city administration.

PARKING — Said the city will install 10-hour meters on the upper deck of the Lootens Garage parking lot, and said the city administration will negotiate with the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. in connection with a lease agreement for a lot at Third and Lindaro streets.

PARK — Said the city is negotiating with the McKeon Construction Co. of Sacramento for a 1.56-acre parcel at Canal Street and Kerner Boulevard eyed for use as a park.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. July 16.

Special Student Day Is Declared

SAN CLEMENTE (UPI) — President Nixon yesterday declared Nov. 14 National Student Government Day.

" ... Our schools should be not only centers of learning, but also laboratories for democracy," the President's proclamanation said. "Student councils and similiar organizations ... are helping to teach the basic skills of citizenship, and to develop the qualities of leadership in the young people who take part."

Telephone Dialing Area Is Expanded

Residents within the San Rafael telephone exchange can now call the Nicasio (662) prefix without incurring an extra charge, the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. has announced.

The San Rafael exchange includes the 453, 454, 456, 457, 461, 472, 479, and 488 prefixes.

Campaign Fund Limit Is Proposed

A San Rafael city councilman, claiming that the city's recent council contest produced some of the biggest spenders in municipal history, last night proposed that election expenditures of future candidates be limited.

Councilman John A. Miskimen directed the city administration to prepare a "workable solution" aimed at limiting the "rising cost of expenditures for city council."

Miskimen suggested that staff collect campaign expense regulation ordinances used by other California cities, as well as a campaign expense proposal recently aired by San Anselmo City Councilman Martin G. Blinder, for council consideration.

Blinder proposed last week that no candidate be allowed to spend more than the sum derived by multiplying the number of registered voters by 12 cents, and that a $100 lid be placed on donations from any single individual, as well as other tough regulations.

The six candidates for two San Rafael city council seats last April reported spending a total of $25,885.35 in their election bids.

Logging nearly Half of that total was Thomas R. O'Toole, who reported spending $12,880 for third place in the two-way race. O'Toole received 3,561 votes, placing behind successful candidates Lawrence E. Mulryan, who spent $5,126.94 and received 5,141 votes, and Jack G. Nixon, who spent $5,508.17 and received 4,540 votes.

Tentative Nod On Contract For Landscaping

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors yesterday tentatively approved a contract for landscaping at Shollenberger River Park in Petaluma.

Neal Shooter Co. of San Rafael submitted the lowest bid of $13,384 for the first phase of landscaping at the park adjacent to the Petaluma boat launching ramp. The work had been estimated to cost $15,036.

Board members told Parks Director Joseph Rodota to study the bid and return next Monday for official awarding of the contract.

Petaluma will join the county in developing the 20-acre park which will include playing fields, picnic and play areas.

Ex-Director Returns For Short Term

Mark Ireland, who resigned as a director of the Bolinas Public Utility District less than two months ago, came back onto the board last night for an 18-day term that may set some sort of record for brevity.

Ireland's appointment was voted unanimously after lengthy discussion by board members on a replacement for Gregory Hewlitt, whose unexpected resignation was submitted two weeks ago.

Chairman William E. Nyman will leave Thursday on a trip from which he will return Aug. 1. The three remaining directors were concerned that without a new appointment, district business could be stalled.

Some directors thought they needed more time to interview applicants, and Roy L. Stafford angrily charged from the audience that an immediate appointment would be a "railroad job."

In the end, the board asked Ireland if he would resume his seat until the end of the month. "I can serve until July 20" replied Ireland, and was voted in forthwith.

Fourth Prison Inmate Stabbing In Three Days

A San Quentin inmate, serving a life term for murder, yesterday was the fourth convict at the prison to be stabbed in three days.

Velton Watkins, 48, sentenced from San Joaquin County, was held in the prison hospital today for observation and treatment after being stabbed three times in the lower back. The incident at 1 p.m. was thought by prison officials to be a continuation of a fist fight among inmates two weeks ago.

William D. Nyberg, prison information officer, said the incident yesterday and three stabbings on Saturday may be linked together. He said the participants in an earlier fight had been returned to the general prison population Friday after the assurance that the problem was resolved but it apparently was not.

Nyberg said the stabbing took place in the east block of the prison and one suspect was being held. No weapon has been found.

Sirhan's Brother Gets Jail For Threat To Meir

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Sharif B. Sirhan, brother of convicted assassin Sirhan B. Sirhan, has himself been sentenced to jail—for threatening the life of Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir.

Sirhan, 40, was found guilty yesterday of mailing a letter to Secretary of State William P. Rogers threatening Mrs. Meir during her visit to the United States earlier this year. He was sentenced to six months in jail but allowed to go free on $10,000 bail pending appeal.

Preliminary Sewage Plans Get Approval

Directors of the Bolinas Public Utilities District last night approved preliminary working drawings for new sewage treatment facilities subject to some changes that were described as minor.

The facilities will include five treatment ponds on Bolinas mesa and a pumping station downtown. No cost estimates were available at the meeting.

(No representative for the engineering firm of Kirker Chapman and Associates was present. A spokesman told the Independent-Journal yesterday that cost figures were being worked up and should be available in a few days.)

Most discussion last night came from some members of the audience who thought that the board's proviso that the contractor must hire local labor "whenever possible" would get the district in trouble with unions and would add to costs if inexperienced help were hired.

Directors replied that Bolinas workers could join unions and that the contractor was asked only to hire local labor "where qualified." A show of hands indicated most persons in the audience favored the provision.

Architect Don Batcheldor, who had been advising the board on the sewage plans, said "the overall is fine." Among minor exceptions, he said, were overly large pipes for sprinkler heads in an irrigation field where the board hopes to raise crops watered from the pond.

Batcheldor also said needed replacement of the old sewer line on Wharf Road was not in the contract. He was directed to ask the engineer to prepare an alternate bid for a new line.

Director Orville Schell warned that although construction is expected to begin in August, there is a possibility the system may not be in operation until next year.

The treatment ponds require water in amounts that can be delivered only by the winter rains, he said, yet if construction should lag, he noted, the project could be still unfinished by the time the rainy season arrived and the contractor could not then continue work.

In a related matter, the board approved a $250,000 contract for purchase of the 95-acre Sharon property adjoining Mesa and Overlook roads, planned as the site of the sewage ponds and irrigation field. The contract is contingent upon the district's receipt of state and federal grants necessary to complete the facilities.

The Bolinas Public Utilities District Board also:

CLOSED SESSION — Announced that no decision was reached at the session called to hear complaints of maintenance men against the directors, and that discussion will be continued at 7:30 p.m. July 11.

WORKSHOP — Announced a workshop meeting with consultants on the long range water plans to be held at 10 a.m. Monday in the district office.

BUDGET — Announced a meeting of the budget committee for 10 a.m. Tuesday also in the district office.

In Stinson Beach a community street party and bring-your-own picnic is planned tomorrow from 5 to 11 p.m. on Calle Del Sierra.

One Trustee Still Can't Take Seat

Two of three Marin residents who won school district board seats in the April 17 election but who failed to file required campaign financial statements by the May 22 deadline have now complied with the law.

A third, however, Carolyn L. Brown, who was elected to the Bolinas-Stinson School District board, is still ineligible to take her seat this month, according to Peter C. Meyer, county elections officer.

Jerrold M. Ladar, elected to the Tamalpais High School District board, and Marilyn C. Marioni of Lagunitas School District board, received necessary permission from Judge Henry J. Broderick of superior court to file their statements late.

Ladar then reported that he received $325 in campaign contributions and spent $650 on his campaign. Mrs. Marioni said she spent under $200 and thus was not required to list contributions.

Mrs. Brown, however, still has not filed the required financial statement, Meyer said, "despite three phone calls" to the school district office, warning the staff that she may not take her seat until she files the document.

Women Will Continue As Guards

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A San Quentin Prison convict who charged that women guards constituted "cruel and unusual punishment" received little sympathy from a federal judge yesterday.

U.S. District Judge Robert H. Schnacke dismissed the civil rights suit by Larrance Hand, 41, but said he could refile it "if he sees fit to do so."

Hand charged in his suit, filed in March, that the prison's two women guards were "in a position" to watch him bathe and one of them bore a strong resemblance to his wife.

Schnacke said the suit was legally defective because it only said the women were "in a position" to invade his privacy.

"Likewise," the judge said, "it is difficult to take seriously as a genuine grievance his claim that he is attracted to (one woman guard) because she resembles his wife.

"The same logic would apply to the admittance of female visitors to prisons, the showing of motion picture films and television shows and other aspects of prison life."

Fund Grant Received By Center

The Marin Child Development Center in Tiburon has received a grant from the California Department of Mental Hygiene to instruct the center's staff in individual play therapy for emotionally and neurologically handicapped children.

Audrey Dreyfus, executive director of the center, said the grant will be for fiscal 1973-74 at a maximum amount of $9,450. Dr. James Donovan will direct the program and, if successful, it may be followed by an $8,054 grant the following year.

The project commences Sept. 15 and will be separate from the center's operating budget. The center is one of three Marin facilities which supplies psychiatric care and have been mentioned in recent reports of overspending beyond regular budgets.

The county's Medi-Cal fund for psychiatric care of the indigent was overspent by more than $600,000 for the last fiscal year. Dr. Robert Taylor, county mental health program chief, has said the state will probably come up with about $100,000. But the remainder of the deficit must be handled by shifting funds within other county health programs.

Mrs. Dreyfus said this grant is for a separate program, however, and was not intended to cover any deficiencies.

Autos Claimed Water Polluters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A study carried out for the Environmental Protection Agency concludes that cars are primary polluters of water.

Biospherics, Inc., of Rockville, Md., an independent research firm, said in a report issued Monday by the EPA that pollutants spread on roads by autos befoul rivers and streams almost as much as municipal sewage.

The pollutants include asbestos from brake linings, rubber from tires, zinc from oil and tires, lead from gasoline, and nitrogen and phosphorus compounds. Rainstorms carry the pollutants into waterways.

Meatless Pizza Standards Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Meatless pizzas would have to have at least 12 per cent cheese under a new rule proposed yesterday by the Agriculture Department.

Officials said their proposal would not apply to pizzas baked in pizzerias and restaurants. It would apply only to pizzas baked by processors for interstate sale through groceries or in restaurants which do not do their own baking.

Continuation Of Controls Said Suicide

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Continued national economic controls spell "economic suicide for our country," the director of the Nixon Administration's Cost of Living Council said.

Economist John T. Dunlop said the council hopes to move past the current 60-day price freeze toward a period where restraints on the economy would not be needed.

"We want to get out of it (the freeze) as soon as we can," he said yesterday. Dunlop told members of the Commonwealth Club here that "agriculture is the center" of current inflation problems.

"Our demand for agricultural products at home has grown rapidly over supply," he said.

He said the nation should concentrate on the areas of food prices, gasoline and oil costs, industrial prices and wages to halt inflation and stabilize the economy.

"It is my judgment that we have indeed, in the period ahead, a difficult economic passage," Dunlop said.

"A good deal more listening, more quiet discussion" will be needed to solve economic problems, he said. "The picture is far from difficult and bleak."

To solve economic problems, the director said government and citizens should ask, "what measures can we take to institute capacity growth in a number of industries that are short." A Phase 4 program with a long-term viewpoint is essential to prevent high inflation, he added.

The 38 per cent increase in prices received by farmers last year would not be repeated when new crops are harvested next fall, Dunlop predicted, adding that, "There will certainly be some controls on food in Phase 4."

Asked what types of controls might be expected after Phase 4 is instituted, Dunlop said he hoped "Phase 5 is phase out" of economic restraints.

"My impression is there will not be likely freezes in any section of Phase 4," he said.

He added that Administration officials hope to consult with business, labor and consumer groups in designing new Phase 4 controls.

"Up to this point we do not see a serious or irreversible damage to the economy" resulting from current controls, Dunlop said.

(Dunlop is a College of Marin graduate.

(The long-time Harvard University economist who heads the national group, attended the Kentfield campus in 1931 and 1932, graduating in 1933.

(College records disclose that Dunlop, now 58, carried heavy class loads of between 15.5 and 17.5 units and got all A's and B's.

(He studied economics — and also Spanish, chemistry, history, hygiene, philosophy and American Institutions.

(Dunlop came to Marin County from Placerville, where he attended high school. After College of Marin he went on to the University of California at Berkeley, and started his teaching career at Harvard in 1938.)

Man Sentenced In Selling Fake Investments

An East Bay man was sentenced yesterday to 60 days in jail and ordered to repay a Belvedere man from whom he obtained $2,830 under false pretenses.

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court also placed Frank Pickell Jr., 36, on probation for two years.

Belvedere Police arrested Pickell March 26 after Ralph L. Stephenson of 101 West Shore Road said he became suspicious on giving Pickell the money to invest in Southern California Property.

Neither Pickell nor a third man said to have been involved in the venture was a real estate man so Stephenson turned in Pickell, who lives in Port Costa, according to Belvedere Police.

A SIGN OF PEACE?

Mrs. Richard Nixon admires three baby doves which were found nesting under the eaves of the First Family's San Clemente home. The nest and its brood were first noticed by Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev during his recent visit to the Western White House. He commented at the time the doves were a sure sign of peace, Mrs. Nixon said yesterday.

Belvedere To Seek General Plan Help

The Belvedere City Council, seeking a general plan which will meet state requirements despite difficulty created by the city's existing high-density development, decided last night to seek outside help in readying a plan by the new Jan. 1 deadline for submission.

However, the council delayed action for a month on City Mgr. William L. Cavalli's recommendation to solicit proposals from selected fee-paid planning consulting firms.

In the interim, Cavalli was instructed to seek assistance from the state Legislature through Sen. Peter H. Behr and Assemblyman William T. Bagley and through the League of California Cities.

He was also told to contact other managers in cities of comparable size and density to see how they were confronting their general plan problems.

The council emphasized the "unique" dilemma it faces as a small city of near-total development and inelastic boundaries. "Our general plan is a reality of what we have," said Mayor Allan Steinau, "with very little room for a change or modification."

"It is the consensus of the city council," said Councilman David E. Bordon, "that small cities like us cannot go along" with the requirements of a general plan.

The Belvedere City Council Also:

CONCERT — Received a report that permission had been received from the musician's union for a Navy band to perform at the city's Aug. 11 picnic.

PARK AND RECREATION — Received recommendations from the parks and recreation commission dry grasses in the city, particularly along Lagoon Road and San Rafael and Golden Gate Avenues, be cleared because of fire hazard.

LAGOON ROAD PARK — Supported developing a park in the open area between Lagoon Road and Tiburon Boulevard, as proposed by Capt. Gervin Wait of the park and recreation committee, but refused to allocate $1,200 for preliminary development plans.

SUBDIVISION REGULATIONS — Instructed staff to check with Belvedere Land Co. for ways for limiting shrub height and insuring view corridors within the West Shore subdivision to obtain maximum views for homes in the area.

PLAQUES — Requested Cavalli to acquire name plaques to identify city council members at future meetings.

UPPER ACACIA — Voted to inform the residents of Upper Acacia Avenue, which the city has determined is a "driveway" and not its maintenance responsibility, that its condition is "potentially hazardous," and that the residents are responsible for its upkeep.

APPOINTMENTS — Named Dr. Stuart C. Cullen to the open space committee, and Martin Barmante assistant liaison to Tiburon Sanitary District board.

ACCESS LANE — Referred to the parks and recreation commission a request from seven Corinthian Island residents that the right-of-way lane between 79 and 85 Bellevue Avenue be developed to provide access to the beach. Donald M. Bekins of 85 Bellevue Avenue objected, saying that the path intersects the porch

POLICE RADIO — Returned to the council an amended version of the arrangement for a radio linkage between the Belvedere and Tiburon police forces. The original version was unacceptable, according to Belvedere Town Atty. Robert F. MacKay, because it exempted Tiburon police for responsibility in the event of failure to relay messages to Belvedere from the county police.

BUS ROUTE — Requested Cavalli to contact Golden Gate Bridge District and request that buses on its route No. 10 be allowed to return to their regular Belvedere runs during commuter hours. Service through the city had been discontinued by the district during noncommuter hours, and Route 10 had been omitting Belvedere service at all hours because it is a primarily noncommuter service.

AGENDA —Resolved that residents wishing to place items on the agenda of city council meetings must submit them to City Hall by 10 a.m. of the preceding Tuesday.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to a meeting Thursday at 8 p.m. in the community center for consideration of the budget.

Spacecraft Begins Trip

SEATTLE (UPI) — Another Mariner spacecraft is on the very first leg of its journey to Venus and Mercury.

The 1,100 pound vehicle was put aboard a special truck at the Boeing Space Center Monday and dispatched to the California Institute of Tehnology's Jet Propulsion Laboratory at Pasadena.

There the craft will undergo the last of a series of tests prior to being sent on to Cape Canaveral, Fla., from where it is to be launched in November toward the solar system's two innermost planets.

Water Connection Action Is Filed

A San Rafael firm, terming Marin's alleged water shortage "synthetic and imagined," yesterday renewed its demands for water service to a planned development and asked about $3 million in damages.

The McCarthy Co., which wants to build 292 apartments opposite the Civic Center, charged the Marin Municipal Water District with discrimination and negligence in fabricating a water shortage and failing to seek new sources of water to alleviate it.

The moratorium on pipeline extension voted June 7 by district directors was enacted "in bad faith," the firm claimed, "and was intended by the board members who voted for it to represent no more than a reflection of a pretended shortage which the majority of the board diligently tried to create and contrive."

The McCarthy Co. blames directors Jack R. Felson, L. Martin Griffin and Ronald T. Stafford for "applying secret and unwritten standards" to reject the application, and asked $100,000 punitive damages from each.

The amended suit filed by San Rafael attorney Albert Bianchi also asks $1,693,000 actual damages — the alleged value of the firm's 54-acre site and the cost of engineering services — and $1 million punitive damages.

Not named in the amended suit are district directors Jordan L. Martinelli Jr. and John M. MacPhail, who voted against the moratorium.

The amended suit was filed in reply to a demurrer filed by the water district. Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire found defects in the firm's original lawsuit June 19 and gave the firm 15 days to amend it.

The suit also cites 100 unnamed persons said to have conspired with the district in violation of California's antitrust act of the already approved properties.

The suit also asks an injunction to halt the district from discriminating further against the McCarthy Co.

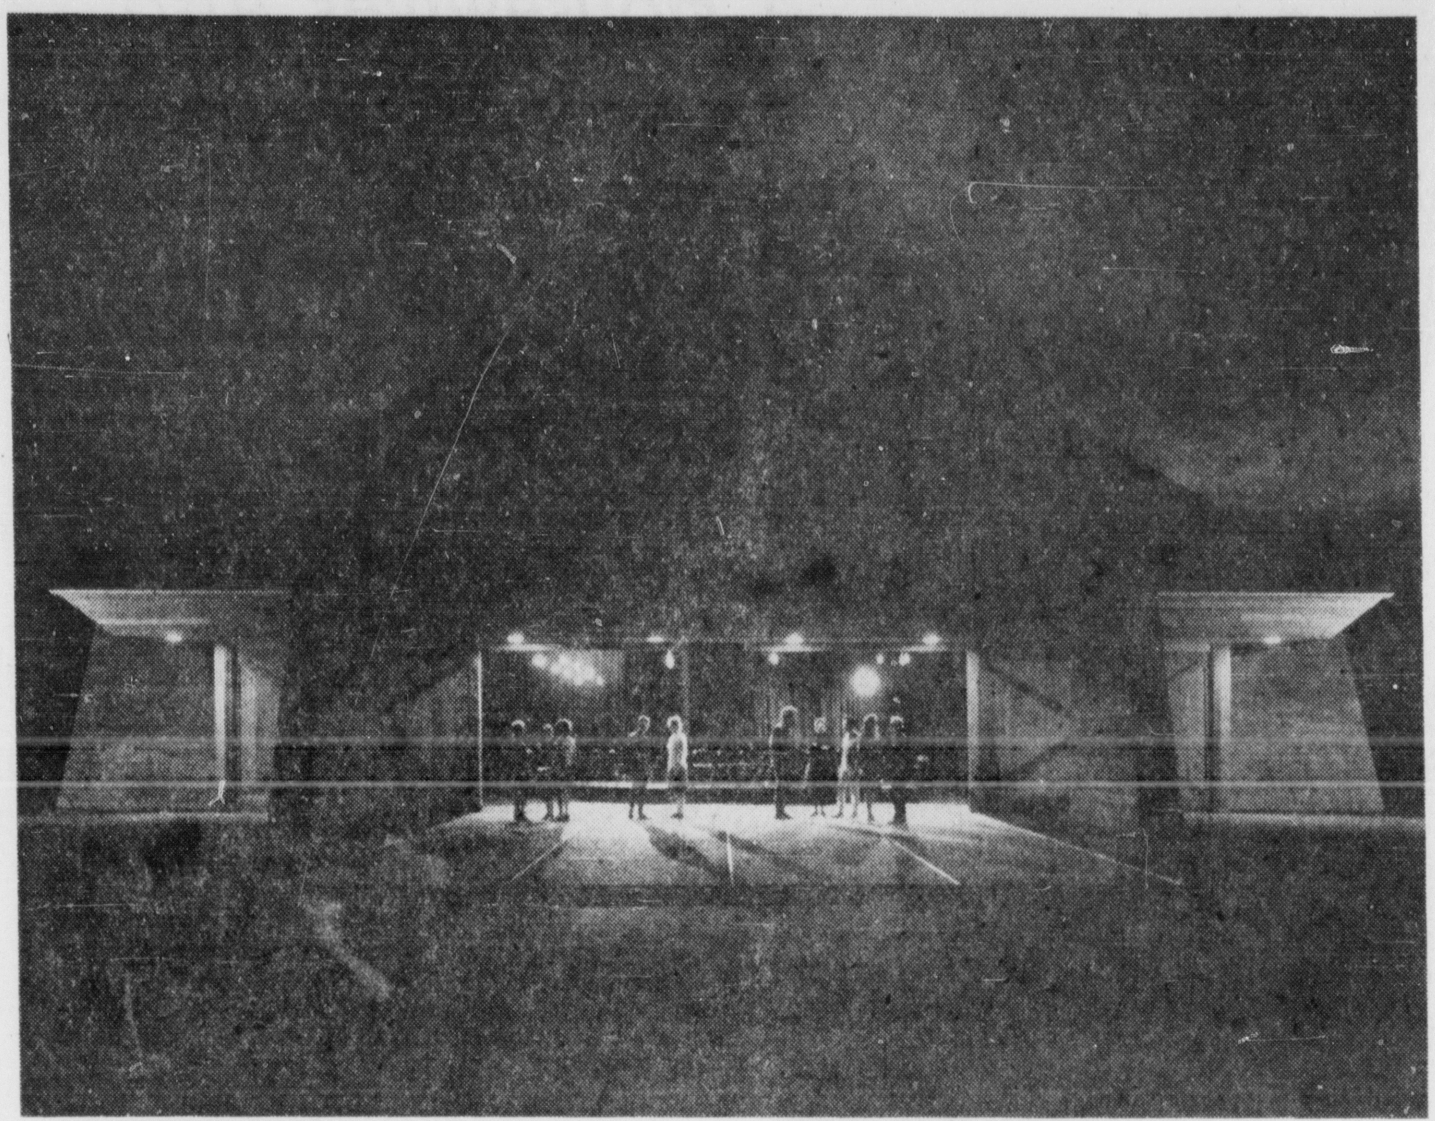
Women Architects Found Plenty Of Discrimination



ARCHITECT JANE Duncombe's favorite design is this wood theater in Carmel. During 20 years as an architect she has had to overcome discrimination and has faced many employers who said they do not hire women.

(Karl Riek photo)

Women who have ambitions in architecture are still finding opposition among male employers in the profession, according to Marin County architects Rebecca Wood Watkin of Kentfield and Jane Duncombe, of Mill Valley.

The women, who between them have 50 years of architectural experience, are members of the Bay Area Organization of Women Architects formed six months ago. Although less than 4 per cent of practicing architects are women, the organization's membership exceeds 135.

The Marin architects both said they have had to overcome discrimination in their profession and faced many "we don't hire women here," attitudes.

REBECCA WATKIN
Architect

Rebecca Watkin was one of the first three women to obtain an architectural degree from Pennsylvania State University. To help her begin her career a prominent San Francisco engineer took her on the rounds of firms to personally introduce her. After 25 "nos" she found a job in Marin County, where she has stayed for 30 years. She specializes in designing summer cabins and "second homes."

THE BREAK for women in the profession came in World War II, according to Mrs. Watkin. Her belief is shared by Miss Duncombe, who was the only woman majoring in architecture at the University of Illinois at the time. Following graduation she received a traveling scholarship, which she used to study with Frank Lloyd Wright at Taliesin East.

The following year she came to the Bay Area and, like Mrs. Watkin, was unable to find a job in San Francisco. She worked for a Marin firm for six years, then traveled abroad for two years. Eight years ago she became a partner in the firm of Duncombe, Roland and Miller with offices in Santa Rosa.

Unlike most architects who specialize in a particular type of building, Miss Duncombe has designed banks, office buildings, apartments, hospitals, a mortuary, a winery, low-income residential units and condominium complexes.

She is working with a group of designers, engineers and builders in Sausalito, whose approach is to handle all phases of a project, design, structural analysis and working drawings among themselves, rather than subcontracting work to other firms.

Women in architecture will benefit from society's changing attitude toward working mothers, according to Mrs. Watkin.

"DAY CARE centers are increasing, and there is less resentment toward women who are using them," she said.

Mrs. Watkins was recently reappointed to the Marin County Planning Commission despite some of her unpopular stands on housing. She favors providing low and moderate-income housing in Marin.

"Young families are being forced economically to leave the county because there is not enough housing in the $35,000 to $40,000 range, which is considered moderate in Marin," she said.

Miss Duncombe is disenchanted with the federal government's housing projects for low-income and minority families, she said.

"Why create more small ghettos all over Marin?" she asked, proposing that the government subsidize these families to allow them to live in homes throughout the community.

She is impatient with women architects whose primary concern is with salary increases and promotions for women within architectural firms, she said.

"THERE ARE far more important causes to get involved with and other aspects of our profession that need to be drastically improved," she said.

"More of us have to become partners and principals. When we are convinced and happy about what we are doing, we will convince the client we can do the job."

Both women are optimistic that today's women architects won't have to face as many of the injustices and criticisms that they have.

"Clients are beginning to realize that the lady sitting next to the man in the architect's office is not his girlfriend but most likely the principal architect for their project," Jane Duncombe said.

Truogs See Their Daughter Graduate

By MOLLY MARIN

Lt. Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Nicholas F. Truog and their daughter Melissa of Novato recently returned from a trip to Minnesota where they attended graduation ceremonies for their daughter Melinda at St. Olaf College in Northfield.

While there Colonel and Mrs. Truog were honored at a dinner party at the Camelot in Minneapolis by their three daughters and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Kirk M. Wolter of Ames, Iowa, and Melinda and Melissa, on their 25th wedding anniversary. Relatives and members of the wedding party were also present.

The Truogs were married on June 15, 1948, at Grace Lutheran Church on the University of Minnesota campus, three days after Colonel Truog was graduated from the university and had received his commission as an ensign in the Navy. He retired two years ago.

Melinda graduated magna cum laude with a bachelor of science degree in nursing. She was also one of five nurses to receive departmental honors of distinction in nursing education. She was graduated from Novato High School and attended Sonoma State College. She has accepted a position at a Lutheran junior and senior high school camp on Lake Vermillion in northern Minnesota for the summer and will return to California in the fall.

ROGUE RIVER will be the new address for Dr. and Mrs. John Miller, who have lived in Mill Valley for 17 years. John and Etoile have purchased 10 acres in the Rogue River Valley in southern Oregon, and look forward to growing their own vegetables, reading, painting, refinishing some furniture, writing, going to Ashland, Ore., to see some plays and enjoying visitors. With Timothy, 18, their youngest son entering college in the fall, the Millers want to try a different way of life. Their other sons are David, Paul, Stephen, Clifford and Peter.

WHEN THE Howard Lisles of Tiburon left June 24 for Canada and Alaska, the Roy Kellys from Sydney, Australia, moved into the Lisles' home on Kiel Cove.

The Kellys are the only Australians here for the American Optometrical Convention in San Francisco. They will also visit with their daughter, Denise, and son, Geoffrey, of Tiburon.

MR. AND MRS. Charles Bogni of San Rafael returned from a two-week trip to Buffalo, N.Y., to visit friends and relatives. They also visited Niagara Falls and Sockport Locks.

Ballot Said Strongest Force For Liberation

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — A nationally known leader of women says the ballot now is the most powerful force to be used in the liberation movement.

"We've had to have the drum majors to get the attention," said Mrs. Belle S. Spafford, of Salt Lake City, Utah. "But we must be guided by reason, not propaganda.

"I don't believe in anything that smacks of militancy. We must use the orderly processes. . . use the ballot."

Mrs. Spafford is president of the women's auxiliary in the Mormon Church world-wide. She is past president of the National Council of Women and remains on the executive committee of that umbrella group for 32 women's organizations with a United States membership of about 25 million women.

SHE ALSO IS recorder-secretary for the child and family committee of the International Council of Women.

We talked of the liberation movement and women's role in modern society during Mrs. Spafford's stopover in New York en route to Vienna. She was scheduled to be a keynote speaker during the council's annual meeting there ending tomorrow.

"We are united on the essentials," said Mrs. Spafford. "Self-worth, self-fulfillment, justice, equal pay for equal work. And more women are working attracted by the desire of more income, of standards of living higher. . . "But somehow we must preserve the home as the pillar of society, of the community. . .

"I often wonder what's going to happen to women with all the pressures. the load of the home, of income, of children. "

IN A COPY of her speech prepared for delivery in Vienna, Mrs. Spafford cited one study made by the CBS-Broadcast Group's Conference on the way today's woman plays her role.

The study shows that the average woman today is better trained than was her mother to enter the labor force, including the professions. Today, 15 million women in the United States have had at least some college training — more than twice as many as two decades ago.

Yet withal, she said, housework still is the principal activity of about half of our adult females. The conference board study concluded that the typical United States housewife spends 57 hours a week caring for home and family.

"The average work week in industry is 40 hours," said Mrs. Spafford. "The demands made upon a woman who assumes the dual role of homemaker-housekeeper and wage earner in the industrialized countries are heavy indeed.

"How far can we women stretch ourselves? We have to face up to what our primary role is."

TO THOSE working women who say one answer is in hiring help for the home, Mrs. Spafford has some reservations, especially with rearing children.

"It costs us around $10,000 a year for a juvenile in reformatory," she said. "For special treatment, it can be as much as $100 a day."

Mrs. Spafford, in her 70s, is widowed, has a son who's an attorney, a deceased daughter, and there are 10 grandchildren.

Said the woman who's devoted a lifetime to social service, "There is nothing so satisfying. . . so many real rewards. . . as have come from my being a homemaker."

Headway Being Made On Accidents In Home

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Safe at home" is the ultimate goal of accident fighters on the homefront.

There is some slight evidence of progress. Consider: accidents in and about the home took about 27,500 lives in 1971. That is about 2,000 less than in 1966.

In terms of death rates, this comes out to 13.3 per 100,000 in 1971. That is down from the rate of 15.1 in 1966. So both in numbers of deaths and death rates there has been improvement.

The report that home is safer than it was but still rates as an accident trap is from the Statistical Bulletin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

Despite the downward trend, home accidents remain a serious problem — amenable to preventive measures. They take twice as many lives in a year as do work-related accidents.

Falls are the leading cause of accidental deaths in the home. Most of the deaths concentrate at the older ages.

FIRES AND flames are responsible for about a fifth of the total home accident mortality, and constitute the principal type of fatal accident in the home among adults aged 45 to 64. And among children 1 to 14.

Poisoning by solids and liquids, which ranks third among home mishaps, is the chief cause of fatal accidents in the age range 15 to 44.

Mechanical suffocation and inhalation and ingestion of food or other objects are leading causes of fatal home accidents among infants under one year of age.

According to the statisticians, fatal accidents in and about the homes are considerably more frequent among males than among females.

Since falls outrank every other type of fatal accident in the home, it may help to prevent such accidents by reviewing some of the characteristics. To wit:

Three out of 10 fatal falls in one study occurred on stairs or steps.

One out of four were attributed to falls on the same level, such as slipping, stumbling, tripping over objects or falling while merely walking about the house.

OTHER FATAL falls were from ladders, windows, roofs, beds, chairs.

In the falls, injuries to the head were responsible for more than half of the fatalities. Hip injuries also were numerous. In the study the most frequent cause of death was cerebral damage characterized as concussion or hemorrhage.

Another tip for those interested in prevention of fatal accidents on the homefront: never repair a car in a closed garage or sit or sleep in a car with the motor running. Most of the fatal gas poisonings in the study were due to motor vehicle exhaust gas, and usually occurred while the victims were either working on a car in a closed garage or sitting or sleeping in a car with the motor running.

In deaths due to firearms, playing or fooling with guns, cleaning guns, and handling guns thought to be unloaded were the circumstances most frequently reported.

Homosexual Must Tell Parents About Himself Through Column

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

The following letter is written to and for my parents. It was easy to write because I can let them read it in the newspaper if you print it.

I think you would do a service to people in similar situations if you allow the letter to be anonymous so that many parents will believe it was written to them.

DEAR MOM AND DAD:

This letter isn't easy for me to write. It will not be easy for you to read. But I must tell you things about myself which I am not yet ready to say in person. Please understand that I am trying to find a way of communicating my feeling which will cause the least pain for you and for me.

To come right out with it seems the only way. I am a homosexual.

I have wrestled with this problem ever since I was a teen-ager, and there is no doubt about my sexual orientation. This is what I am. This is what society would choose to call me, but I am much more. I am a happy, loving human.

I wish I could have come to you with this problem long ago, but I couldn't. I felt trapped, and I felt evil and afraid. I didn't understand why I was reacting the way I was, but I was sure I was sick. I was also afraid that you would not understand and would reject me. Above all, I did not want to hurt you.

After years of pretense, I can tell you that you never met my dates because I never had any. When you thought I was with a girl, I was out alone. At times, I saw a psychiatrist and this was my "date." The doctor helped me to live with my feelings and emotions. He convinced me that I am not evil or sick. My problem rests in adjusting to how others react to me. I can be a loving human being, but I need to know that others will love me as I am.

You probably will spend some time trying to figure out where you went wrong. You will probe deeply to ascertain what you did to make me like this. You did make mistakes, but all parents make mistakes. I don't blame you. If you could understand that I am comfortable with the only sexuality I know, you wouldn't blame yourselves. A parent of a heterosexual doesn't dig into the past to discover why he made his child heterosexual. The parent of a homosexual need not probe either.

I want all of this out in the open so that I don't have to pretend with you. I want you to give me the same respect and love you would give to a heterosexual child. Society doesn't make life easy for the homosexual, so genuine understanding and love from you will be a great comfort.

All I really ask is your acceptance. Don't try to change me or offer me impossible solutions. If there were a way to change, and I really felt able to, I would have sought the cure long ago. I will do nothing to shame you, but I hope you will follow your common sense and admit to the fact that I've got to be me! — WITH LOVE, YOUR SON

SON:

Thank you for a letter that may help many parents toward better understanding of their homosexual children . . . and perhaps toward less guilt feelings about "how it all happened."

I hope they'll agree with me that homosexuality while "different" is not "sick," and it is not always their "failures" which create this kind of sexuality.

I think we've done many fine people a grave injustice by labeling them "dangerous" or "evil-and-dirty." And we've almost equally harmed good parents by implying "It's all your fault!" True, poor parenting can push children into homosexuality, but have we ever proved that those same children, under different circumstances, might not still have become gay?

. . .And why, outside of a few passages in the Bible (which I'll hear about, believe me!!) is homosexuality such a major issue? Seems to me that what people do with their lives as a whole is so much more important than how they choose their (consenting) sexual partners. — HELEN

Her Business Is Helping Handicapped

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. — Mrs. Dee Cullen's concern is with the socially handicapped — those who have been on alcohol, drugs or in prison. She runs Cullen Industries — and on a shoestring, as she puts it — hiring 11 persons to make draperies, pillows, bedspreads, sheets, pillowcases and hospital gowns.

The strange part of it is, Mrs. Cullen is so totally dedicated that she doesn't take a salary or even expenses.

This remarkable woman was a state social worker for many years, but in order to help others she quit her job, mortgaged everything and went into business.

She says: "There seems to be plenty of help for the physically and mentally handicapped but none for the socially handicapped. They have the potential and the capability, and all they need is a little pushing. And most of the time they don't even need to be pushed.

INSIDE YOUR HOME

Carpeting Usually Worth The Cost

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY
(Distributed by General Features Corp.)

Carpeting a complete household can leave a big depression in the budget while making a nice impression on your family and friends. Even so, it is usually money well spent. If you use that carpeting for 10 years, you can pro-rate the investment and figure out how much visual pleasure you get from having color and comfort underfoot. I also believe there's a saving in household chores where wall-to-wall carpeting has been used.

And today's carpeting is a lot easier to maintain. We asked for some tips in carpet care and came up with these suggestions from the research staff at Armstrong Information Service. Perhaps they'll help you maximize the life and beauty of your carpets.

First, invest in the best quality carpet you can afford. Even though it may seem to cost a bit more than bargain stock, you'll derive better service in the long run.

THERE are three kinds of cleaning you can consider routine. One is a light sweeping. That's all that is usually needed to keep carpet free of ordinary dust and lint. The next is regular vacuuming. This is needed to remove loose soil before it can penetrate into the carpet pile. (You might vacuum once a week or after any emergency spills.) Heavy-duty cleaning, covering every corner of the carpet, could be planned every other week, depending on traffic.

Prompt stain removal is important The removal of a stain often depends on your ability to identify what caused it. So don't let it ride. It is critical to blot, not rub, when a spill occurs Then treat the area with proper solvent.

MUCH soiling occurs when family members carry dust and dirt onto a carpet area from a noncarpeted area Liquids, grass stains and oil spots frequently are tracked in on shoes A good way to avoid this type of soiling is to provide small walk-off mats They can be made of matching carpeting and used at doorways, at the stairway (be sure to plan for a nonskid backing) or on terrace and patio paving stones. Small kitchen mats save an enormous amount of tracking, so by all means add a small rug at sink and stove areas if you do not have kitchen carpeting.

Since the pile of your carpet can become dented or depressed with the weight of heavy pieces of furniture, remember to frequently reposition the furnishings. Otherwise, if you later decide on a new room arrangement, you'll be stuck with proof of your previous floor plan. If carpet dents persist, use furniture glides under the legs of heavy pieces and use a steam iron held a few inches above the carpet to revive the pile. Then a quick brush-up should be enough to conceal the dent.

Armstrong Cork Co. has prepared a new leaflet entitled "A Guide to Easy Care of Armstrong Carpet," and it has a spot-removal chart showing how to treat specific spills. Free copies are available through Armstrong carpet retailers, if you are interested.

SUPERIOR, Colo. (UPI) — When the siren wails atop this town's red brick firehouse, the firefighters drop their ironing, dusting, washing and other housewifely chores to respond.

The Superior, Colo., Volunteer Fire Department — the day crew, that is — is composed of women.

The siren's three-minute call has pierced the air fewer than a dozen times in the past year and a half, and each time the six women have grabbed their white helmets and black bunker coats and headed for the department's one-and-a-half ton 1948 pump truck.

"We've had only three actual fires since the department started," said Marlene Machin, 35, wife of Chief Jack Machin, 37 Mrs. Machin has been a member of the department since its inception.

"That first fire was only a wheatfield," she said. "We had problems with the truck. Then we couldn't get the pump started. It was a good thing the fire was not a bad one."

SUPERIOR, COLO., population 230, is a sleepy, rural community just south of the 25-mile expressway between Boulder, Colo., and Denver Mobile homes and modest brick and frame houses face onto the town's tree-lined streets. There are no stores in Superior and most of the people work and shop in Denver and Boulder

"We used to receive fire protection from Louisville, Colo., which is about five miles away," said Machin, who became chief in February after two years as assistant chief.

"They did a real good job of giving us protection. But then one day about two years ago they decided to form a tax district here and everybody in Superior balked.

"So Louisville told us they wouldn't go outside their city limits and protect us anymore."

Machin, a maintenance man for the Boulder Valley School system, said a group of Superior citizens met and decided the town needed its own fire department.

"BUT THEN we faced a problem," Machin said. "We decided we would have to have women as firefighters, at least during the day There are always women in town, but you can never guarantee that a man will be around.

"So we set it up with 10 men, mostly for nights and weekends, and six women, mostly for use during week days."

All 16 department members have been trained in first aid, fire fighting and the use of equipment and other necessary skills. And all have nursed a heavy, two-inch hose inside a burning building during practice fires, supervised by more experienced departments.

The second fire the women fought was a bad one. A mobile home exploded because of a gas leak, destroying the home and threatening several others nearby. Flaming debris was thrown hundreds of feet.

Pam Papini, 30, married 12 years and the mother of two boys, was up to her elbows in meatloaf when the alarm sounded for the fire. Luckily she had a babysitter handy for Jason, 4, her youngest son. "I was scared stiff, or maybe apprehensive stiff would be a better way to put it," she said. "I think the others were that way, too, but we did what had to be done."

MRS. MACHIN agreed.

"It was a bad fire with flames and smoke all over the place," she said. "I was apprehensive but not really scared—although someone who doesn't feel some fear is a fool."

The women contained the fire and saved the surrounding mobile homes. They feel they did a good job and the chief agreed.

"No one, not even a major metropolitan department, could have saved that trailer," Machin said. "They did really well They got there quickly and went about their business. Hell, some of the women are more qualified to fight fires than some of the men."

COOL KISS ON A HOT DAY

What happened here? Did they get their braces locked? Probably not, but a frolic in a cool pool on a 91 degree day in Chicago always deserves a stolen kiss whether you're human, or whether you're a Kodiak bear at Brookfield Zoo. Reports say humans at the zoo had almost as much fun as the bears, but the humans didn't have a pool. (UPI Telephoto)

Speed Case Figure Is Arraigned

A man thought to have been a key figure in a sophisticated methamphetamine manufacturing operation in Lake County was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on a felony charge of possessing the drug for sale in Novato last November.

The Marin charge is the least of the legal problems for 29-year-old Robert Steven Basey of no fixed address, who was ordered to return to court today to plead.

Basey, according to the Sonoma County sheriff's office, was arrested Thursday by deputies on Highway 101 north of Novato on a $50,000 federal warrant charging him with conspiracy to make illegal drugs stemming from raids in Lake County, Petaluma and Novato on June 2 and 3.

Following the arrest, according to the Sonoma authorities, they found a stolen gun, an automatic rifle and explosives in a motel room Basey was occupying.

Furthermore, Basey must serve a three-year federal prison term for a conviction three years ago on a charge of conspiring to make illegal drugs. An appeal in that case was denied last week, deputies said.

The Marin charge filed June 20 was the result of a traffic stop by Novato police last Nov. 24 on a car driven by another man. Police said they found 17 packets of methamphetamine under the seat.

The packets were linked to Basey rather than the driver through comparison of fingerprints and writing on the packages, police said.

Basey's case is scheduled to be disposed of in Marin before he is turned over to federal authorities on the more recent count.

The U.S. Attorney charged Basey after weekend raids in Novato, Petaluma and Nice in Lake County netted 11 persons, seven guns and a sophisticated laboratory said to have produced speed for distribution in Marin and Sonoma counties.

State Employees Get Pay Boosts

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Personnel Board has approved pay increases averaging 12.9 per cent for the state's civil service work force at a cost of $183 million.

The board yesterday voted unanimously approval to the salary increase, in effect a rubberstamp action of the allocation proposed by Gov. Ronald Reagan and approved by the legislature in the new state budget.

The increases, to be included in July paychecks, ranged from 2.5 per cent for 82 civil servants to as high as 22.5 per cent for 50 others.

U.S. Russia Plan Joint Iceland Study

NEW YORK (UPI) — Russian scientists, who believe Iceland is an extension of the European continent, and their American counterparts, who think Iceland is a big bump on the ocean floor, will go there in person together to try to find out which theory is correct.

American experts boarded the Soviet research ship Akademik Kurchatov, which docked in New York yesterday, to begin the first U.S.-U.S.S.R. scientific expeditions since the recent scientific accord signed during Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev's visit.

The expedition will study the ocean floor and seek sites for a deep sea drilling project designed to penetrate the ocean layers of sediment and find out more about the earth's crust.

Five Columbia University scientists will be on board the 405-foot Kurchatov when it sails Saturday, including John Ewing, 48, a seismology expert, and his daughter, Valerie, 22, a 1973 graduate of Barnard College, who studied geology. Sixty-two Soviets will be on board.

According to several Columbia experts who showed up for the arrival, the Russians have not totally taken up the theory of "continental drift" or "plate techtonics," which is widely accepted in America. It postulates that the earth's land masses were once part of a giant supercontinent at the South Pole that split up and drifted apart.

Rock samples dredged from the ocean floor, Ewing said, hopefully will confirm the theory further and also explain whether Iceland was created by giant upwellings of lava from beneath the earth's crust—as the American scientists believe.

Viktor Kanaev, chief scientist of the Kurchatov, said it is the view of the leader of a Russian expedition that has been in Iceland for three years that the island is a 2-billion-year-old part of the European continent.

California Guard Reverses Trend

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Despite the all-volunteer Army and abolition of the draft, the California Army National Guard currently stands at 90 per cent of its authorized manpower.

The California guard has an authorized strength of 22,500 persons and reached 90 per cent of that level last week, a reversal of the trend nationally, Lt. Col. Andrew G. Wolf, publc affairs officer, reported yesterday.

Wolf said 15 months ago when debate raged over abolition of the draft and move toward an all-volunteer Army, the California Army guard was at 80 per cent of full authorization.

State Witness Given Sentence

A Marin City man who turned state's evidence to avoid going to prison was sentenced yesterday to a suspended prison term and one year in Marin County Jail.

David Barrow, 27, was given the sentence in Marin Superior Court by Judge E. Warren McGuire after Brrow promised to identify three other Marin City men involved in the gang rape of a Sausalito woman and testify against them.

The district attorney's office has filed no charge against the other three pending further investigation.

Medicare Rate Hike Is Delayed

A hike in the monthly premium rate for Medicare medical insurance scheduled to go into effect this month will not take place because of President Nixon's 60-day price freeze policy, according to Edwin H. Leuin, district manager for the San Rafael Social Security office.

Leuin said, however, that the higher rate will be charged until the premium record for each beneficiary can be corrected and then refunds will be made.

The premiums had been scheduled to rise from $5.80 a month to $6.30.

Medicare helps pay doctor bills and other medical expenses for almost everyone 65 years or over and for disabled persons under 65 who have been eligible for monthly social security disability payments for two years or more.

Panel Calls For Bids On New Sewers

The Ross Valley Sanitary District board last night called for bids for a new sewer line along McAllister and College avenues in Kentfield.

Bids will be opened at the board's Aug. 6 meeting, said district manager Ned J. Ongaro.

The board reviewed the proposed fiscal 1973-74 budget of $1,450,000, said Ongaro, but took no action. Adoption of the budget is expected at the board's July 16 meeting at 8 p.m. at the district office when any salary raises for district employees will be announced.

The proposed budget calls for a tax rate of $1 per $100 assessed valuation, unchanged from his year's rate. Assessed valuation in the district's taxing area has increased 10 per cent this year.

Beverly Major Top 4-H Leader

The Independent-Journal incorrectly reported yesterday that Beverly Major won a $100 4-H leader of the year award.

Mrs. Major was given a county leader of the year trophy for her activities with the Marin Mounted 4-H and other 4-H leadership.

A $100 Hi 4-H scholarship went to Gail Nuttman of San Anselmo, a member of Marin Mounted 4-H.

No Charge Filed In Cyclist Arrest

No charge has been filed against a 20-year-old Fairfax man, arrested June 26 on suspicion of stealing a motorcycle, pending further investigation by the district attorney's office.

Simon Moreno Gil was arrested on White's Hill by the California Highway Patrol while driving a motorcycle registered to Nicholas Paul Gilvert of Fairfax, according to officers.

Mill Valley Financial Chief Quits

Mill Valley's finance director Carl W. Reynolds is leaving the city July 13 to work for the City of San Mateo as its fiscal director and city treasurer.

Reynolds said that his departure was "not a case of any crisis, it's simply an opportunity for a bigger job." He said he would get about $4,800 more per year than his present salary of $17,388 in Mill Valley.

Reynolds, 56, came to Mill Valley in November 1969 from a similar job in Delano, Kern County.

His departure is the second from the city's finance department in less than a month. His assistant, William Feldmeier, left for a financial job in Davis, Yolo County, last week. Feldmeier has been replaced by John Tweedie of San Rafael who worked previously in private industry.

"Mill Valley will get along quite nicely without me here," said Reynolds. "It was doing fine before I came and will do so after I leave."

Reynolds graduated from the University of California at Los Angeles in business administration and had also worked in private industry and as the accounting director for Azusa, Los Angeles County.

His successor has not been chosen yet.

Soviet Factories Are Below Goals

MOSCOW (UPI) — Many Ukrainian factories are failing to meet goals for production of consumer goods, according to the Ukrainian Communist Party newspaper Rabochaya Gazeta.

The newspaper, in its June 30 edition which reached Moscow today, indicated the shortages were a major topic of discussion at the Ukrainian Supreme Soviet meeting late last month.

Deputy Premier Gym I. Vashchenko told the meeting that light industry fell short on delivery of goods to trade organizations last year by $172.5 million.

Grass Fire Burns About 15 Acres

A roadside grass fire on the Nicasio Valley Road, spotted at 3:26 p.m. yesterday, was fought by two fire departments before it was controlled at 4:11 p.m. after burning 15 acres.

The Marin County Fire Department and Nicasio Volunteer Fire Department had seven trucks on the fire which burned in the area of the Dexter Ranch.

Fairfax Adds Wage Hikes, Improvements To Budget

Paring in some cases and adding in others, the Fairfax Town Council last night continued review of the proposed 1973-74 budget by approving supplementary wage increases and capital improvement allotments.

Five of the town's employees received bonus wage hikes in addition to the 5 per cent increase previously approved for all town employees.

City Administrator Robert E. Crowe's $17,640 salary will jump an additional 7.5 per cent. He had asked for a 20 per cent increase in June.

Other employees to get additional raises are the City Attorney, $600 per year; Building and Zoning Inspector and Street Superintendent, $612 per year; and the town mechanic, $264 per year.

Consideration of similar bonus increases for the town's four top police and fire officials was postponed until the next regular meeting on Monday at 8 p.m. at the Fairfax Women's Club.

Council members agreed that they could not reasonably discuss proposed salary increases for the four police and fire heads until negotiations conclude on salaries for the subordinate police and fire positions. The council went into closed session last night to hear reports of the progress of talks with the Fairfax Policemen's Association and the Fairfax Firemen's Association, the groups representing the local service employees.

After extensive argument among members over details, the council decided to spend only half the budgeted $47,300 in revenue sharing funds this year for improving the town's park pavilion, the other half to be spent next year. The pavilion was the first ranking of ten items suggested by Crowe as projects for which the town's revenue sharing grant of approximately $200,000 might be spent.

The council also allotted $6,000 in revenue sharing money for improvements of the women's club. This project was listed third on the priority list.

The other eight suggestions, with estimated costs in parentheses, are:

Hiring of planning consultant ($25,000), four-wheel drive fire unit ($15,000), creek controls ($20,000), tennis courts ($15,000), opaque projector ($500), bond issue interest allotment (unknown), open space purchase (unknown), beautification (unknown).

Crowe said it was unlikely that the council would take action on any of the other revenue sharing proposals for at least another month.

In all, last night's actions lowered Crowe's proposed budget for next year by about $1,000 to $808,279. Major contributor to the decrease was the spreading over two-years payment for the pavilion projects. Crowe had budgeted the full $47,300 for this year.

Various means of dividing the pavilion spending over two years were suggested by the council. Councilman Robert R. Souza favored spending half the revenue sharing money ($23,650) plus $17,000 from other funds on the pavilion this year, with the remaining $23,650 to come in 1974-75. Councilman Frank J. Egger's view that the total spent on the project should remain the same from this year to next prevailed, and the $17,000 was also divided for equal expenditure this year and next.

In all, $32,150 will be spent in each of the next two years on the pavilion restoration.

Capital improvement projects routinely approved last night were for street reflectors on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, water line improvements, ballpark and duplex maintenance, and undergrounding for street lights and fire alarms.

Court Arraigns Arson Suspect

An unemployed cook and dishwasher from Florida was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on a felony arson charge stemming from a fire at a house just outside San Rafael limits.

Bail for Stephen Eugene Arnold, 22, of Miami, was raised from $5,000 to $15,000 by Judge Gary W. Thomas.

Arnold then was ordered to return to court today to enter a plea after conferring with the public defender's office. He was arrested Saturday on suspicion of torching a house at 31 Manzanita Avenue off South San Pedro Road.

New Round In Deputies' Pay Is Set

A new round of negotiations is scheduled this week with Marin County sheriff's deputies, whose contract expired Sunday, Asst. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella said today.

Neither Campanella nor Deputy James Hickey, vice chairman of the deputy sheriff's association, would comment on what is being sought by deputies or what the county has offered.

Higher ranking officers — lieutenants and captains — have a separate bargaining unit and settled earlier with the county.

Their agreement calls for a 5.25 per cent pay hike for the department's one captain, Harvey Teague, while the nine lieutenants will get 2.75 per cent this month and another .25 per cent in January.

Beyond that, they will receive a temporary 2 per cent cost-of-living hike until the deputies have settled, at which time the staff officers will get the same cost-of-living increase as their men.

Additionally, the staff officer's uniform allowance has been increased from $200 per year to $240.

Campanella said the salary increases — over and above cost-of-living hikes — were granted staff officers in order to increase the pay differential between the officers and their men.

Sausalito To Consider Slip Sharing

A request by Harbor Carriers Inc. to share ferry docking facilities in downtown Sausalito with the Golden Gate Bridge District will be considered by the city council at 8 p.m. today in city hall.

The firm has asked the district for permission to use the ferry slip, at least temporarily. Harbor Carriers initially proposes to run one trip daily to Sausalito from Fisherman's Wharf, leaving the wharf about 11 a.m. and returning there about 2 p.m.

In April a Marin Superior Court judge ordered the city to permit Harbor Carriers to operate a ferry to Sausalito.

The ruling climaxed a five-year fight by the firm, twice denied a permit by the Sausalito City Council, to run a ferry to Sausalito. Harbor Carriers filed suit on the day the council turned down the second proposal in July 1971.

To date, the city has not filed an appeal of Judge Warren E. McGuire's decision.

In other business, the council will continue its discussion of regulations for central waterfront zone. Planning Director Herb Case will present a plan for disposition of the land in Marinship which the Army Corps of Engineers has announced it intends to abandon.

Marin Housing Authority Will Meet On Budget

Marin County Housing Authority directors will tackle the problem of staying within the budget for leased housing in the face of heavy inflationary pressure, at their regular meeting at 8 p.m. today in the authority office, 47 Paul Drive, San Rafael.

Wallace K. Shepherd, executive director, said that the authority faces rent hike requests from landlords of housing leased to the authority.

The existing budget likely will not last through Dec. 31, he warned. The future allocation from the Department of Housing and Urban Development calls for 100 of the leased units in Marin to be new construction —an unlikely possibility with high construction costs and building moratoriums in many parts of the county.

Trial Date Set In Case Of Embezzlement

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A jury trial has been set for Sept. 4 in U.S. District Court for a San Anselmo man and three others charged with embezzling $107,590 from the Bank of California.

The four men, using trust accounts in the bank and three false accounts they set up, transferred funds and played the stock market, according to an indictment filed last month.

Charged are George Thomas McIntosh, 32, of San Anselmo, an assistant trust officer at the bank; Jorge S. Rivas, 34, of San Francisco, also a trust officer; Wallace J. Von Elsiminger, 43, a Los Angeles public relations man, and Jerry T. Nomura, 40, of Berkeley, a stockbroker.

The prosecutor in the case, Asst. U.S. Att. Paul Fitzpatrick, has said they "used seven different schemes to get money from the bank."

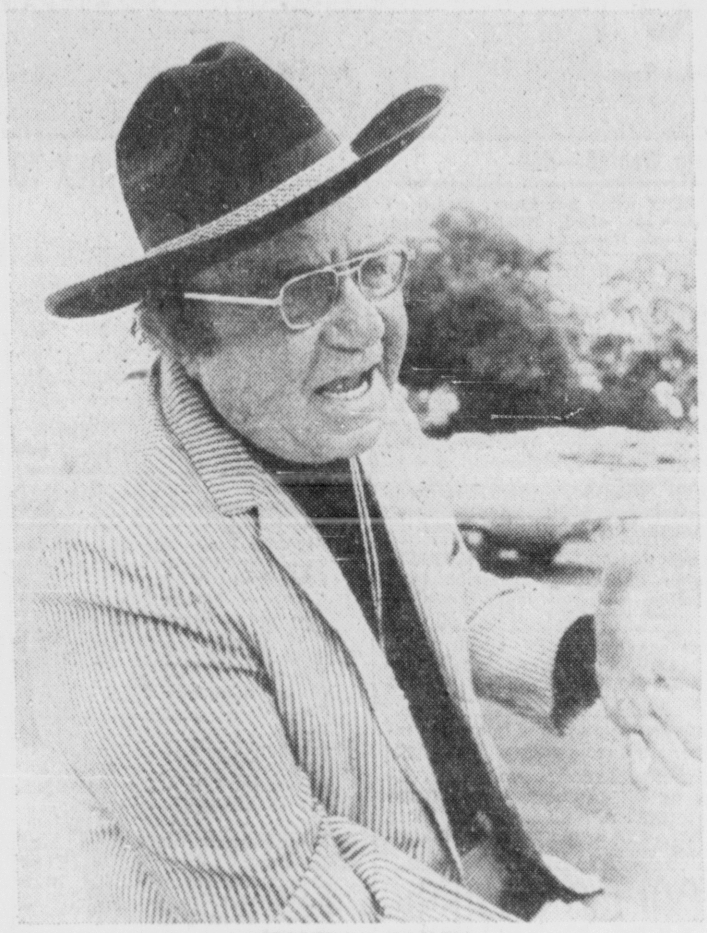
A Good Journalist Even Does His Own Obituary

By PAUL LIBERATORE



JOSEPH Q. RIZNIK
"In the 'Obituary Quarterly' the writer is allowed to choose who he is, or who he was."

(Independent-Journal photo)

The reporter assigned Joseph Q. Riznik's obituary won't have to thrash through cobwebbed files in a deadline frenzy to resurrect the high times in the former newsman's colorful past.

The artful Riznik, alive and well at 74 in San Anselmo, has written his own in the adjective-strewn style that earned him the title, bestowed by old-time newsroom pals, of "the complete rewrite man."

Riznik's auto-obituary appears in the "Lost Generation Journal," published by Dr. Thomas Wood of the University of Tulsa — journalism department.

The experience was so enlivening, Riznik says, that he invites others to write their own death notices in his planned "Obituary Quarterly," the inaugural issue of which is scheduled for March of 1974.

"It will be full of miniature autobiographies in which the writer is allowed to choose who he is, or who he was," Riznik recently explained.

Editorial guidelines will be nonexistent. There will be no editing and no space limitations, a policy he said represents a jab at a former Hearst city editor who, when presented a cleverly written but relatively unimportant news story, would scrawl in thick black copy pencil, "If there is space."

"I thought up a marvelous epitath for him," said Riznik, preferring to leave his former boss anonymous. "Chiseled on his toumbstone shall be the words: 'Here lies the city editor — if there is space.' "

The idea for the quarterly was born when an Overseas Press Club colleague telephoned Riznik in January to say that he had been invited to write Riznik's obituary for the forthcoming "Lost Generation Journal."

"A few days later this character (Wood) in the Midwest called me red-faced to apologize and to ask me to contribute a writing for his magazine. I told him I was sorry he'd not be publishing my obit since I'd been ever so curious to read my own death notice."

And while some may have viewed this turn of events as an augury, Riznik viewed it as an enterprise.

His mind travelled back among the faces of the myriad media personalities he has known, and he came up with an illustrious list of possible contributors.

A few are Harry Reasoner, James Reston, Eric Sevareid, William Randolph Hearst Jr., Howard K. Smith, John Daly, Charles Collingwood, Elmer Davis, Art Buchwald, Marcus Childs, Art Hoppe.

"One lady novelist has already sent me her contribution. It says, 'Born. Inevitably, died.' Another delightful one is: 'Once you're born you're done for.' "

Riznik's own rhapsodic recount of his life begins when, as a San Francisco high school student, he first tasted printers' ink as a copy boy at the Chronicle.

From there it was a degree in comparative literature from the University of California at Berkeley, a period of time holed up in a Paris Hotel room with "The Great American Novel" and later a job as a rewrite man at the Chicago Tribune.

As a rewrite man, taking notes over the phone from other reporters and turning them into flashy accounts, he says he perfected what he calls "the art of rewriting."

He claims to have once turned a 28-word cable about a subway disaster in Times Square at the homegoing hour into a five-column story.

"News does not grow on trees," Riznik commented. Quite frequently, I made it up."

He also claims to have made popular the term "honey blond."

"Here was this bedraggled dame, and there wasn't much to say about her, so I transformed her into this honey blond, and then she became more . . . distinctive."

Riznik later joined the Hearst chain, first with the San Francisco Examiner, then on the rewrite desk of the New York American.

There, during the Hauptman-Lindbergh kidnapping trial Riznik reports he wrote the first edition stories under the bylines of "three Hearst sob-sisters" and, on occasion, the Damon Runyon lead for the first run of the morning edition.

During the crushed fedora and trenchcoat days of racketeers in black limousines, Riznik recalls, he inaugurated a daily rewrite of crime and racket stories fed to him by police beat reporters under what he calls "the umbrella catchall byline: By the Crime Reporter."

When the American was merged with another Hearst paper, Riznik left, worked a few years unhappily on a magazine, did some writing for Columbia Pictures and, about the time World War II was brewing, decided to join CBS radio news.

"The CBS newsroom is a rewriteman's heaven, even paradise," Riznik wrote in his auto-obituatry, recalling that he commanded the resources of all the major wire services, plus a trans-Atlantic telephone to speak to Edward R. Murrow and William Shirer.

There he met newscaster Elmer Davis, author of, among others, "Friends of Mr. Sweeney" and "Giant Killer."

Davis was chosen by President Roosevelt to direct the Office of War Information and his aide Riznik's flood of recollections embraces a stint as coordinotor of media.

Riznik currently is revising his memoirs titled "Piece of Mind" and also serves as an editorial consultant to several authors.

He plans to make the "Obituary Quarterly" a nonprofit venture, charging a nominal fee to the first 50 accepted for publication. He invites Marinites to contribute, and although they may not make the first edition, others are planned to follow.

In his own obituary, Riznik requests memorial contributions to the Riznik Memorial Fund at the University of California at Berkeley for promising student writers, and instructs his son to check after his death to see if anyone heeds his wish.

"I've ever been curious whether anyone pays any attention to preferences of the living in death notices," he wrote. "On the other hand, nobody gives a tinker's dam what a dead man prefers."

Taxes Down, But County Budget Is Up

Final adjustments to Marin County's budget for fiscal 1973-74 have increased the total to $50.5 million, county Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell reported today.

The previously reported total of $50.3 million did not include precise salary figures, but was based on a rough estimate of expected hikes in employee pay, he said. The board of supervisors approved a 5 per cent increase for most employees, creating a higher payroll than anticipated.

The county's property tax rate stands at $2.59 per $100 assessed valuation plus 10 cents for open space acquisition in a separate regional park district budget. Last year's tax rate, including 10 cents for land purchase, was $2.75.

The reduction in tax rate and increase in the state's homeowners' exemption mean about 60 per cent of the local taxpayers will pay less for county government this year compared to last, according to Mitchell.

The other 40 per cent — primarily those taxpayers whose property has been reassessed upwards by more than $4,000 in market value — will pay more.

The lower tax rate will finance the larger budget — up $3 million from the fiscal 1972-73 spending program — because of federal revenue sharing and a 10 per cent hike in assessed valuation countywide, Mitchell said.

In preparing the budget earlier this year, Mitchell and County Administrator John F. Barrows used a 9.5 per cent increase in assessed valuation to determine revenues.

That was later changed on the advice of Assessor Bert W. Broemmel who suggested using a more conservative 8.4 per cent figure with any tax revenues generated by a larger increase to be used to cut the tax rate.

Mitchell said today, however, that he later became concerned with the assessor's conservative estimate and decided to base tax revenue on a 9.5 per cent increase in assessed valuation.

The difference between his estimated 9.5 per cent increase and Broemmel's actual 10 per cent means an extra $55,000 in revenue which lowered the tax rate about half a cent to $2.59, Mitchell said.

Mitchell also noted that the county's 1,552-man work force was reduced by 20 positions during budget hearings, the first time in recent years the work force has been trimmed.

The cut falls short of the 50 positions supervisors proposed to cut when they adopted their economy-efficiency policy last year.

Board Takes No Action On Teacher

Lagunitas School District trustees last night took no disciplinary action, following a secand closed hearing on unspecified charges against a teacher, Supt.-Principal Harry F. Roche reported today.

The session was held with the two new trustees sitting on the board, Roche reported. Lee DiVincenzo and Marilyn Marioni took their oaths of office last night, Trustee Richard Sloan was seated for another term and the board elected officers for 1973-74.

The Lagunitas School District Board also:

MEETINGS — Changed the board's meeting dates to the first and third Wednesdays of the month, at 7:30 p.m. in Lagunitas School.

EVALUATION — Appointed a committee to evaluate the school board, administration and teachers, consisting of Trustees Twitchell, Mrs. DiVincenzo, Mrs. Marioni, Roche and citizens Harry Smith, Lindy Graham and Frances Lethbridge.

ART CENTER — Instructed Roche to send the state Office of Local Assistance data to support the $90 rent the district charges for use of old classrooms by the art center.

ADJOURMENT — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. July 18 in Lagunitas School.

Grand Old Man

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's Foreign Secretary, Sir Alec Douglas-Home celebrated his 70th birthday yesterday and ministers from all over the world heading for Helsinki to attend the European Security conference made special stopovers to pay their respects to the "grand old man" of British diplomacy.

Water Board To Receive New Budget

The North Marin County Water District board will receive a proposed operating budget of $715,841 for 1973-74 at 8 p.m. today at West Marin School, Point Reyes Station.

The budget, up $43,500, from last year is based on eliminating the tax rate of 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation, according to Dist. Mgr. John O. Nelson.

The recently enacted increase in connection fees and an eventual hike in water rates will cover the loss of tax revenue, Nelson explained.

The proposed budget includes a 5.74 per cent pay hike recently approved by the board and five new positions, clerical and field jobs.

Nelson said the budget will not be discussed by the board tonight. A special budget session will be set soon.

Thefts Reported By Two Persons

Boyd F. Tribble, 120 Sunnyhill Drive, Petaluma, has told police that watches and golf equipment valued at $2,300 were stolen from his car sometime since June 27.

In Rohnert Park, William Rels, 8478 Lombard Way, told police that a tool box valued at $500 was stolen from his car Saturday or Sunday.

Sausalito Secretary Fights New Sales Tax

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — California's new one-cent sales tax increase is going to be tested in Superior Court because a legal secretary objects to paying four cents tax on two cups of coffee.

"It's outrageous. I don't understand this tax. The state's coffers area already bulging," Miss Mary Grant, 31, of Sausalito said yesterday.

Presiding Judge Joseph Karesh refused to issue a temporary restraining order against the new tax but he did set July 16 for a hearing before Judge Ira A. Brown Jr.

Miss Grant said the state had exceeded its power to raise money for public purposes and was in violation of due process of the law.

But she told the court that if she refused to pay the tax, she might be subject to criminal prosecution and would be deprived of goods and services necessary for her survival.

In her suit, she said that on Sunday when the new tax went into effect she paid 60 cents for two cups of coffee and was charged another four cents because of the tax hike.

The State of California, she said, has accumulated an $829 million budget surplus "as a result of income tax overpayments, federal revenue sharing, tax 'reforms' and a booming economy which has generated bigger tax revenues than expected."

Both the legislature and Gov. Ronald Reagan agree the added tax is unnecessary at this time but since they could not agree on a bill to postpone it before the lawmakers went on vacation, it went into effect Sunday.

The tax is now six cents, instead of five cents, on the dollar., in most of the state.

Miss Grant named as defendants the state, attorney general Evelle J. Younger and the State Board of Equalization, which handles tax matters. Neither Younger nor board executive secretary W.W. Dunlop would comment on the suit until then can examine it.

Six Marinites Given Degrees

California State University, Fresno conferred degrees on six Marin County residents.

David J. Brannam of 300 Mountain View Avenue, San Rafael, received his master's degree.

Bachelor degrees were presented to Steven Joseph Gennaro of 20 San Marcos Place; Marilyn Sue Rhoads of 519 Las Colindas Road; Richard Carl Timmer of 863 Hickory Lane and Christine Ann Weber of 349 Riviera Drive, all San Rafael and Donna Lynne Lane of 2505 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Fairfax.

Road Work Means Delays For San Rafael, Kentfield

Reconstruction of the Poplar Drive intersection on Wolfe Grade will mean traffic delays for San Rafael-Kentfield motorists until mid-October.

A spokesman for the Marin County Public Works Department said today that the realignment of the dangerous intersection is part of a $104,000 contract. Also included is complete resurfacing of Wolfe Grade from Sir Francis Drake Boulevard to the San Rafael city limits.

George Davison of the county's design section said the roadwork is expensive because of the steepness of the terrain and major movements of utilities.

Wolfe Grade itself will be moved some 100 feet during the realignment, said Davison, necessitating some slope fill on the eastern edge of the wildly twisting highway.

The curve at Poplar Drive is being flattened slightly to allow traffic coming onto Wolfe Grade some vision. In past years there have been accidents at the intersection, said Davison.

Workmen for the contractors, Ghilotti Brothers, have nearly completed clearing some oaks at the edge of Wolfe Grade in preparation for the realignment. Poplar Drive itself will be closed to local traffic at Wolfe Grade starting at the end of this month and extending through August. Residents will have to use Laurel Grove Avenue instead, said Davison.

Because water and gas lines have to be relocated the work is expected to stretch through October, said Davison.

Lodging Cost Really $17.92

The cost of lodging Marin County employees traveling on official business averaged $17.92 per night during the three months since county supervisors changed the travel expense allocation.

Due to a typographical error, yesterday's Independent-Journal incorrectly said $19.92 at one point in the story on per diem costs, though the $17.92 figure was correctly printed elsewhere in the article.

Cernan Predicts Man On Mars If There's Money

HONOLULU (UPI) — Astronauts will reach the planet Mars "within our lifetime" if Americans are willing to spend the money, says the commander of America's last manned moon flight.

Navy Capt. Eugene Cernan was in Hawaii yesterday with the two other astronauts who flew Apollo 17 to the moon earlier this year, Capt. Ronald Evans and Dr. Harrison Schmitt, a geologist.

"It all depends on how much the American people are willing to spend on the space program," Cernan said. "We could have astronauts walking on the surface of Mars within our lifetime if there is enough money."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Generalized Itching Common Ill, Hard To Contend With

Generalized itching is a common and difficult sensation with which to contend. The problem is compounded when there is no rash or outward evidence of irritation. It is a symptom that is more easily controled when confined to a single area such as the scalp, feet, or anus. Antihistamine and cortisonelike ointments, creams, and lotions are by far the most consistently effective remedies. Antihistamine tablets also are available. Calamine lotion, menthol, phenol, and camphor also are helpful.

Aspirin is one of my favorites, provided it does not cause bleeding under the skin or in the stomach. It relieves localized and generalized itching in much the same way as it eases pain.

THIS IS understandable because an itch may be a form of nonpainful pain. The nerve fibers that transmit pain sensations also transmit the feelings of skin irritation. Now and then, a pain reliever along with a sedative is helpful, since the latter helps to relax the individual.

Certain skin abnormalities produce itching. Dryness, one of the most prevalent, is common, especially in older persons. And more so, among those who bathe too frequently. Applications of cream or oil are helpful. Urticaria (hives) is nerve wracking because the swollen wheals contain histamine, and extremely irritating chemical. This is true whether the lesions stem from allergy to seafood or mosquito bites.

PEDICULOSIS, a parasitic disease, serves as a good example of why finding the cause is the best remedy for itching. Once the causative agent is removed, the itching stops.

However, it is not always this easy. For example, itching may be the external manifestation of a systemic disease involving certain liver and kidney disorders, internal malignancies, including Hodgkin's disease and metabolic, neurologic, and psychosomatic disturbances. For this reason, in persistent itching, physicians often suggest a complete examination, including laboratory tests, even when there is no rash or dryness.

ABRACADABRA

REPLY

Cure by suggestion is one of the major medical mysteries. Tell the child with an air of great confidence that the wart will go away if he rubs it with a kernel of corn, potato peeling, or whatnot. Oddly, it usually goes away.

IRON PILLS

Y. W. writes: Do iron pills cause black stools?

REPLY

Yes. Only a small percentage of iron taken by mouth is absorbed by the stomach and intestines. The remainder passes unchanged.

PEMPHIGUS

REPLY

The cause of this disorder is not know. known. water blisters develop over the skin, but these are external manifestations of an internal abnormality. This explains why the condition is serious and cortisone proves life saving.

PULSE INCREASE

REPLY

Yes, providing the rate returns to normal limits (60 to 90) after resting a few minutes.

Milk Price Increase Proposed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman John E. Thurman Jr., D-Modesto, yesterday urged an increase in California milk prices, which he said were more than six cents below the national average.

Thurman, who is a dairyman, testified before a Department of Food and Agriculture hearing into requests by the dairy industry to increase the retail cost of milk to cover the rising cost of producing it.

Thurman supported the request by the industry before a standing room only crowd of more than 100 persons. He expressed "great concern over the plight of the dairy industry."

The lawmaker said the average price for a half-gallon of milk is 55 cents in California compared to a nationwide average of 61.4 cents. He stated a half-gallon cost 70 cents in Baltimore, 69 cents in Washington, D.C., and 68 cents in New York.

Robert A. Abbott, senior economist with the department, presented a series of charts and statistical information which he said showed the cost of producing milk has risen "fantastically" while retail prices have remained fixed.

The hearing was sought by the industry which cited the high cost of feed and replacement animals and the rainy winter as contributing to what Cal-Dairy Inc. termed "one of the severest cost crunches in the history of the state" for milk producers.

Also supporting a boost in milk prices were the Marin County Board of Supervisors and the Petaluma area chamber of commerce.

Abbott said the department had until Sept. 1 to make a decision on the milk prices.

Drastic Change In 20-Day Span

Okay, all you Giant fans, let's hear nothing about this June Swoon, July Die stuff. The Young Giants (and 43-year-old relief pitcher Don McMahon) are making their move to catch the Dodgers in the National League West.

That Dodger hot streak can't last forever. I hope. After leaving for a week's vacation a few days ago, I returned to find the Giants deep in second place. When I had left, they were on top of the standings.

Needing an explanation, I hot-footed it (I drove my car, actually) to Candlestick Park in time to catch the final game of the homestand before the Giants left for Houston-Atlanta-Cincinnati. Writer Jack Hanley, a former I-J columnist who covers the Giants thoroughly, supplied me with the startling statistics.

On June 6 the Giants had a 38-20 win-loss record, four games ahead of the Dodgers who were 32-22. In a 20-day span to June 26, the Giants won 4 and lost 13 while the Dodgers won 16 and lost 4, leaving S.F. 6½ games behind first place L.A. That was a net drop of 10½ games in 20 days by the Giants, a very dramatic change indeed.

June was truly a disastrous month for the Giants, but the Los Angeles hot streak (21 wins in 29 games) did most of the damage. San Francisco almost ended up with a winning month, losing the game on June 30, 5-2 to the Braves, for a 13-14 month. That's not exactly a swoon, but it's nothing to win pennants on.

Today, the Giants are 12 games over .500 at the halfway point, 47 wins and 35 losses. The Giants were 12 games over .500 after the first month of the season when they were getting good pitching. Since that time the pitching has been as bad as it was expected to be and subsequently the team has lost as many games as it has won, about normal for a team with very good hitting and bad pitching. Ron Bryant (13-5) is the only consistent winner on the Giant pitching staff.

So, can a team with questionable pitching and very fine hitting catch a team with very fine pitching and good hitting? I'm not going to bet my lunch money on it, but we'll just have to keep the faith.

JEFFREY WINSLOW of Tiburon is on the Shawnigan Lake School for Boys (Vancouver Island, British Columbia) eight-oared crew which will be competing in the Royal Regatta at Henley on the Thames, England, starting today.

Winslow was graduated from Shawnigan Lake School in June and is headed for Amherst College in Massachusetts in the fall. He's following a family tradition since brother Chris Winslow was graduated from Shawnigan four years ago and a cousin, Eugene Kilgore III of Tiburon, had his turn two years ago. All three attended Marin Country Day School before their Shawnigan days.

The crew members have been invited to a garden party at Buckingham Palace following the races so they might get a chance to say hello to the Queen. Jeff was president of the student body at Shawnigan and won the "All Arounder" award. He is planning to row for the Amherst crew.

Taylor Wins Wimbledon Net Match

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Roger Taylor of Britain advanced to the men's singles semifinals of the Wimbledon Tennis Championships today after an extraordinary display of sportsmanship in which he insisted on replaying a disputed match point.

In effect the 32-year-old Briton won two match points in beating 17-year-old Bjorn Borg of Sweden 6-1, 6-8, 3-6, 6-3, 7-5.

On the neighboring no. 1 court, second seed Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia, the forgotten man of the tournament, struggled to put out unseeded Indian Davis Cup player Vijay Amritraj 6-4, 3-6, 4-6, 6-4, 7-5 in two hours 45 minutes.

Kodes, twice winner of the French championships and losing finalist at Forest Hills in 1971, will play Taylor for a place in the final.

The two hour and 40 minute center court match between Taylor and Borg was so dramatic no one missed the 70 professionals boycotting the tournament. The high point came in the last game after Borg had saved two match points at 1-5 and then had run four straight games to tie the match 5-all.

There were seven service breaks in the hectic final set and a capacity center court had thunderously applauded both men many times. Taylor served the 12th game and went to match point at 40-15. To the groans of the hometown crowd

Unexpected Sound For McMahon

Giants' Vet Heeds Call From Fox

ATLANTA (UPI) — It was a sound the 43-year-old San Francisco pitching coach had never expected to hear again:

"Now pitching for the Giants," the public address announcer droned, "No. 47 — Don McMahon."

Don McMahon, forced into retirement by the Giants at the end of last season and reactivated a week ago because the Giants' bullpen was in tatters, was making his 844th major league pitching appearance — but his first since last September.

And what an appearance it was.

McMahon retired six batters in a row in two innings of perfect relief to help the Giants beat the Atlanta Braves, 9-5, and salvage a split in their four-game series.

The first batter McMahon was called on to face was Hank Aaron who had hit his 694th career homer (and his 21st of this, his 20th, season) in his previous at bat. Aaron, fooled by one of the three sliders McMahon threw in his two innings, bounced out to shortstop.

McMahon said he expected it when Manager Charlie Fox called him in in the bottom of the eighth in a one-on-none-out situation and the Giants trying to protect a 6-5 lead.

"I knew I was going in," he said. "I knew he (Fox) didn't want Aaron to hit a lefty (John Morris). I suppose if he (Morris) had gotten the first batter (Darrell Evans who walked) out, he (Fox) would have left him in.

"For his age, that McMahon throws plenty hard," said Aaron. "He's still a good pitcher."

"Retiring last fall was not my idea," said McMahon who was 43 last January. "I wasn't ready to retire. But I like this club (the Giants) and decided to take their offer to coach.

"I could have taken my release and tried to catch on with some other team. But, at my age, I'd have had to produce right off the bat or I'd been gone. They don't waste much time looking at 43-yearold ball players."

Aaron, now just 20 behind Babe Ruth's 714 record in his drive to hit more major league home runs than any other player in baseball history, is only at mid-season.

"I haven't hit that 42 yet," noted the 39-year-old Aaron. "But, I've hit more than 40 other seasons (6), so I guess it would be no surprise if I should do it again."

Chris Speier, Gary Matthews and Bobby Bonds belted homers for the Giants, who closed to within 4½ games of the Dodgers. The Giants now move into Cincinnati for a three-game series. It will be Charlie Williams (3-0) for San Francisco against Jack Billingham.

SAFE SLIDE — San Francisco Giants' left fielder Gary Matthews slid into third base with a triple last night in Atlanta as umpire John Kibler and S.F. coach John McNamara (1) looked on. Braves' third baseman Darrell Evans (11) waited for the tardy throw from the outfield in the ninth inning. The Giants won, 9-5.

Two Amateur Sports Groups Against Bill

NEW YORK (UPI) — Amateur athletic groups in the United States, upset by proposed federal legislation that would subvert them to government control, threatened today that such a move might result in the exclusion of this country from future Olympic Games.

"Rule 24 of the International Olympic Committee requires that the USOC (U.S. Olympic Committee) recognize only one governing body for each sport," said Don Miller, executive director of the USOC. "Rule 25 very clearly states that government intrusion or political interference can cause the loss of recognition of the USOC by the IOC."

By unanimous consent, the governing bodies of 31 different sports along with the USOC issued a resolution opposing the proposed Sports Board, stating it would "produce unwarranted government intrusion, resulting in government control of amateur sports in the United States without justifying the change nor substantiating any charges of 'incompetence'."

The Senate Commerce Committee approved a bill last Wednesday that would establish

(UPI Telephoto)

Frazier In Return To Contention

LONDON (UPI) — Joe Frazier is back in business.

The former world heavyweight champion from Philadelphia scored a hard-fought 12-round decision over European champion Joe Bugner of Britain Monday night in his first bout since losing his crown when he was stopped in the second round by George Foreman in Jamaica six months ago.

Frazier's was a comeback in the style that first made him champion and put an end to rumors of his lack of fitness.

"I'm in peak condition," said Smokin' Joe, who had slimmed down to 208 pounds, six lighter than the weight at which he suffered his only defeat. "I feel as though I could go in with Foreman tomorrow and beat him."

Foreman, who was at ringside, called it "one of the greatest fights I have seen," but would not talk about a return and Yancy Durham, Frazier's manager, said there were "no plans yet" for a fight with

Savage Third Person To Die In Indy Speedway Accidents

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Memorial services were scheduled tonight for David Earl "Swede" Savage, who died Monday of burns and injuries suffered in a flaming crash into the wall during the Indianapolis 500-mile race May 30.

Savage's body was to be flown to San Bernardino, Calif., today, where funeral and burial arrangements were pending.

Savage, 26, of Santa Ana, Calif., was the third person to die as a result of accidents at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway during May.

A crew member for one of car owner Andy Granantelli's entries, Armando Teran, 22, Santa Monica, Calif., was struck and killed by a fire truck in the pits as it raced to where Savage's car hit a retaining wall at the head of the main straightaway.

The fire-red Eagle exploded into a ball of flames on impact. The cockpit in which Savage was harnessed came to rest near the outside wall, causing the race to be halted for more than an hour on the 59th lap.

Savage was rushed by helicopter to Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis, suffering burns and broken legs. His death, announced by Speedway Medical Director Dr. Thomas Hanna, came at 9:40 a.m. EST.

Born at San Bernardino, Aug. 26, 1946, Savage began competing in quarter midgets in his home town at the age of 9 and switched to go carts at the age of 12. He moved to motorcycle racing at 15 and won 35 events in six years, but his thoughts were on Indianapolis.

"When I was 9 years old, my goal was to win the Indianapolis 500-mile race," he said once. "It was the thing to do. All the kids I raced with dreamed about Indianapolis."

The 1973 "500" was only his second at Indy. He started in ninth place in 1972, but dropped out with a broken connecting rod after only five laps. Before the fatal crash, Savage led 12 laps.

The broad-shouldered handsome Savage used to say "my accidents have made a better driver of me." During his racing career, he suffered collapsed lungs, broken ribs, a caved-in chest and a severe brain concussion, the latter at Ontario, Calif., which resulted in his missing the 1971 season.

He began driving stock cars in 1967 and he became the protege of Dan Gurney in 1968. Savage placed fifth in his first USAC race at Donnybrooke and scored his first championship car win in 1970 at Phoenix.

The Wrong Zechlin

Tom Zechlin, not his younger brother Ron, was the young man who pitched and batted the C. L. Moore Knickerbockers semi-pro baseball team to a 6-3 non-league victory over the St. Helena Blue Sox Sunday. Yesterday's Independent-Journal incorrectly said it was Ron Zechlin who was the winning pitcher.

Chavez Scores 31 In Pirates' Win

Angels' Berry: An Unsung Hero

OAKLAND (UPI) — If you scan the lists for this year's all star game you'll be hard pressed to find many votes for Ken Berry of the California Angels.

Yet the veteran centerfielder, twice a Golden Glove winner, is enjoying one of the best seasons of his 10-year major league career and currently is hitting at a .301 clip.

Monday night, before a fine turnout of 33,407 in the Oakland Coliseum, Berry drove in all of his team's runs in leading the Angels to a 4-2 victory over the A's and to within two games of first place in the American League West.

Three of the runs came on Berry's third homer of the year, a towering blast to right in the second inning which pitchers Clyde Wright, Dave Sells and Steve Barber made stand up as the Angels snapped a four-game losing streak and knocked the favored A's out of first place in the bargain.

He knows he can't get to this year's game in Kansas City by vote of the fans but he says he'd be tickled to death if he is named by A's skipper Dick Williams, who will lead the A.L.

"It would be nice if I could get to play in this year's game," said Berry, whose home is in Topeka, Kan., about 60 miles from Kansas City. "But I don't kid myself, the only way I'll get there is if someone picks me. The super stars are getting all the votes, not me."

Vida Blue walked Bob Oliver and Richie Scheinblum in the second and Berry leaned on one of Blue's outside fastballs and sent it far over the right field fence.

"It's unusual for me to hit a homer," Berry said modestly, "but it's not unusual for me to hit the ball to right. I like to go with the pitch. In this case Blue provided all the power. He really threw me a helluva fastball and I just leaned on it."

In the bottom of the second, Deron Johnson hit a homer to center on which Berry made a futile leap against the fence. In the process he hurt his right ankle and may have to sit out a game or two.

"I seemed to work out the problem with my ankle," Berry said, and he stayed in the game until the top of the ninth. Then, after singling Scheimblum across with California's fourth run, he was removed by manager Bob Winkles.

"He was limping pretty badly by then," said Winkles, "so I took him out. I don't think he's hurt serously. At least I hope he isn't."

Back-to-back seventh inning doubles by Joe Rudi and Ray Fosse finished Wright but first Sells and then Barber snuffed out A's rallies to lock up Wright's seventh victory in 17 decisions. Blue took his fourth loss compared to seven victories.

Nolan Ryan (9-9) pitches tonight against Ken Holtzman (11-8).

FISH AND GAME

By AL GIDDINGS

A Close Look At Fishing Rule Change

A change in Fish and Game Commission regulations that recently took effect clarifies a long-standing prohibition against the possession of more than one limit of fish taken under a sport fishing license (unless regulations specifically provide that more than one limit may be possessed).

It is aimed at trout and salmon fishermen particularly and emphasizes that they may not lawfully accumulate daily bag limits of fish taken on successive days.

The fact that a sport fisherman cans, smokes or otherwise preserves his day's catch of three salmon does not divest him of the day's limit. He cannot take or possess more salmon while he still possesses the three preserved fish.

Admittedly, wardens might have a difficult time determining how many salmon are contained in a given number of cans. There is no question that the law is difficult to enforce.

Nevertheless, if a warden observed a fisherman catch and preserve three salmon and then on the following day found the angler taking additional salmon without having got rid of the preserved fish, the warden would be obliged to tag him for possessing more than one bag and possession limit of salmon.

And the same would be true if the fish were canned by a commercial or custom canner for the sportsman.

FISHERMEN OFTEN ask how they may lawfully divest themselves of a limit of fish so that they may take fish on the following day or later in the season. This can be done in any one of a number of ways.

An angler may give a limit of fish to his wife, to each of his children, to a relative or to any other person provided the gift does not place the recipient in a position in which he himself has more than one limit in his possession.

And it is not necessary for the recipient of such a gift to have a fishing license.

A fisherman may give the fish to a recipient personally, or he may ship the fish — regardless of whether they are fresh, canned, frozen or otherwise preserved — to the recipient.

UNDER THESE conditions it would be permissible for a family of four persons to have four possession limits of fish at their residence even though all the fish were taken by one family member on four different days.

The same rule would apply to a family camped in a fishing area. The family could also eat part of the fish and the fisherman could replenish the possession limits with fish taken in accordance with the daily bag limits.

It should be obvious that without a possession limit on trout, steelhead, salmon or the like, a sport fisherman could camp beside a stream or reservoir and smoke, salt, can, pickle or otherwise preserve limits of fish taken on successive days, accumulating any number of fish.

WARDENS HAVE FOUND in recent years cases in which trout fishermen in camps preserved repeated daily bag limits until they had accumulated as many as 60 or 70 trout in their possession.

It is felt that this is exceedingly harmful to the resource, and, in addition, mitigates against the ideal of an equitable distribution of catchable trout.

15,000 Stripers Tagged By State

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Some 15,000 striped bass were tagged in the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta this spring, the Department of Fish and Game said Monday.

Of that number, 750 stripers received $5 reward tags to "provide an extra incentive for anglers to return them," the department said.

The 15,000 figure is about 3,500 less than tagged last year and Don Stevens, senior fisheries biologist, said the drop was due to one of two tagging boats being unavailable for one month.

The fish were tagged at two locations, Clarksburg and Antioch. Fisheries biologists estimate there are close to two million legal-sized, 16-inches or longer striped bass in the Sacramento-San Joaquin estuary.

The tagging program is part of a project aimed at establishing "a baseline from which to evaluate how future changes in the delta environment will affect striped bass and to determine which environmental conditions control bass abundance."

2 Amateur Athletic Groups Oppose Bill

a five-man board to be charged with the responsibility of chartering one organization to serve as the governing body in each sport. The five co-sponsors of the legislation claim such a group would eliminate the costly rivalry between the Amateur Athletic Union and the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

"Any dissident group could claim they were the one best equipped and ask for a hearing," Miller said. "What happens to the existing groups? The figure skaters, for example, operate on a six-year cycle and they're already thinking in terms of the 1980 Olympics. How can they plan so far ahead if they don't know they'll be the group chosen to put our team together?"

It was also felt by the amateur groups attending the meeting here that their long experience and knowledge of their particular specialty left them better qualified to run the various sports than a five-man government body.

The meeting was chaired by Philip O. Krumm of Kenosha, Wis., president of the USOC.

"In our judgment," said Miller, "the intrusion of the government into the amateur sports field would create a chaotic

Another phase of the bill calls for the government to match dollar for dollar any sum up to $25 million raised by amateur sports. However, this money would be administered by a 16-man board consisting of such non-sports oriented occupations as architectural engineering, the humanities, fund raising, public relations and financial management.

The measure now before Congress is a combination of five individual pieces of legislation concerning amateur athletics. The sponsors of the individual bills were Sen. James Pearson, R-Kan; Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska; Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C.; Sen. Marlowe Cook, R-Ky.; and Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif. Cook said the best parts of each measure were incorporated into the current version.

But Miller called it "political expediency, which some might term political realism, hoping to get it through the Senate this session."

either Foreman or Muhammad Ali.

British referee Harry Gibbs gave six rounds to Frazier, three to Bugner with three drawn but only once did the Briton manage to jolt Frazier—in the 10th round after coming up from the canvas he surprised him with a left uppercut which momentarily buckled Frazier's knees.

Otherwise, it was all Frazier and the only thing Bugner could raise on the American's face seemed to be a smile as Frazier shrugged off the Briton's left jab and bored in to pound away at the body.

3 All-Star Starters Projected

NEW YORK (UPI) — With only one week left in the balloting for starting berths on the American League All-star team, first baseman Dick Allen of Chicago, catcher Carlton Fisk of Boston and third baseman Brooks Robinson of Baltimore appear to have won starting berths.

Allen, sidelined with an injury, is a doubtful starter but has received the most votes for any player, 436,863. The total is 135,000 more than his likely replacement, John Mayberry of Kansas City.

Fisk and Robinson also enjoyed leads in excess of 100,000 over their nearest competitors. Other leaders include Cookie Rojas of Kansas City at second, Bert Campaneris of Oakland at shortstop and Reggie Jackson of Oakland, Bobby Murcer of New York and Amos Otis of Kansas City in the outfield.

Second base—Cookie Rojas, Kansas City, 363,572; Rod Carew, Minnesota, 356,008; Bobby Grich, Baltimore, 136,839; Horace Clarke, New York, 72,701; Doug Griffin, Boston, 69,799; Sandy Alomar, California, 69,713.

4 MARIN NETTERS GET HELP

Two Marin boys, Henry Jacobson of Belvedere and Cary Stansbury of Tiburon, have been chosen by the Northern California Tennis Association's Junior Patrons Fund selection committee to receive financial aid so they may play tournaments in the East this summer.

Each will play several tournaments on grass, clay and hardcourt surfaces, including national hardcourt championships for Stansbury in boys 14 July 16-27 in Dallas and for Jacobson in boys 16 July 30-Aug. 4 in Kalamazoo, Mich.

Two Tiburon girls, Bee Kilgore and Sue Beatty, also have been selected to receive such aid. Miss Beatty's circuit will include the girls 16 nationals July 23-28 in Charleston, .W. Va., and Miss Kilgore's the girls 18 nationals in Philadelphia Aug. 6-11. In addition, Miss Kilgore will play on the six-girl NCTA team in the Intersectionals July 30-Aug. 3 in Baltimmore.

Babe Ruth Tourneys Sked Split

Since Babe Ruth himself had a split personality, spending part of his career as a pitcher and part as a hitter, it comes as no surprise that the post-season Babe Ruth League youth baseball tournaments will be split as well.

District 9 championships for 14 and 15-year-olds will be held at Arnold Field in Sonoma July 10-18, while play for 13-year-olds will occur at Doyle Park in Santa Rosa July 16-24. Each is double elimination.

Novato last year won the 13-year-old tourney, the only one ever held in Marin, and in fact is two-time defending champion, which means the good players off those teams are ready to make a run at the 14-15 title. Santa Rosa is defending 14-15 champion.

Winner of the 14-15 tournament will advance to the Northern Section of Northern California tourney in Eureka beginning July 20. The 13 winner will go to Visalia for the state tourney beginning July 27.

The 13-year-old tournament contains 12 teams — Novato American, Novato National, Northgate Marin, Central Marin, Southern Marin, San Anselmo, Redwood Empire Northern (Sonoma County), Redwood Empire Southern (Sonoma County), Santa Rosa, Sonoma Valley, Rohnert Park and Country Youth (Sonoma County).

The 14-15 tourney has 13 teams, the same as above except that Southern Marin is divided into American and National leagues.

Waldorf Is West Team Group Head

SAN FRANCISCO — Veteran college football coach Lynn (Pappy) Waldorf today is the new chairman of the West selection committee for the 49th annual Shrine East-West grid game at Candlestick Park Dec. 29.

Waldorf, who retired as the San Francisco 49ers' personnel director last June, is still a Niner consultant. He will handle special assignments for the 49ers — plus his new task as West team chairman.

In assuming his duties, Waldorf said: "I'm very happy to have been asked by Shrine East-West officials to become a part of what I consider to be the greatest game of football played anywhere.

"I will do my very best to field the finest West team possible for this year and for succeeding years."

As a player, coach and scout, Waldorf's grid career spans 55 years. Highlights include: playing tackle at 177 pounds for Syracuse University, coaching U.C. to the Rose Bowl 1949-51, and working for the 49ers.

Then came a second match point. Taylor served, Borg lunged for the ball and netted it. The crowd erupted but Borg, who believed the serve was out, angrily accused an elderly linesman of a bad call. Suddenly Taylor shouted to the umpire that he, too, thought the ball was out.

This time Borg rifled a two-handed placement and it was deuce.

The young Swede, frantically cheered by schoolgirls, some of whom carried Swedish flags, rifled another service into the net and it was match point again.

Billie Jean King of Hilton Head, S.C., Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., plus Australians Margaret Court and Evonne Goolagong advanced to the semis.

Mrs. King eliminated Kerry Melville of Australia 9-8, 8-6 while Miss Evert scored a 6-2, 4-6, 6-2 triumph over Rosie Casals of Sausalito.

Mrs. Court ousted Olga Morozova of the Soviet Union 4-6, 6-4, 6-1 and Miss Goolagong whipped Virginia Wade of Britain 6-3, 6-3.

Jipcho 2nd Best Miler

Combined AP & UPI

STOCKHOLM — Ben Jipcho of Kenya, who became the world's second fastest miler Monday, had a good chance tonight to lower his own world record in the 3,000 meter steeplechase.

"Ben is good for 3:52.0 on the mile, he should be able to win tonight's 3,000 meter steeplechase in something like 8:10.0," Finland's ace runner Tapio Kantanen said.

Jipcho, who won Monday's mile race at the Stockholm Olympic Stadium in 3:52.0 and missed Jim Ryun's world record by only nine-tenths of a second, will be seeking to eclipse the mark of 8:19.8 he set last week in the 3,000 meter steeplechase which bettered the old mark by one second.

Bayi set a furious pace in his first mile race and finished second in 3:52.6 after leading most of the race. Jipcho, at one stage, was 25 yards behind and passed him on the final stretch.

Basketball

Perry, 6-foot-10½, 220 pounds, signed a multi-year contract but the terms were not disclosed. He had also been drafted by Virginia of the American Basketball Association.

LANCE ALWORTH

Cowboys' Alworth Retires

DALLAS (UPI) — Following 11 seasons of professional football, one all-time pass receiving record and lodged in second place in career receiving yardage, Lance Alworth Monday announced his retirement from professional football.

Alworth, a collegiate star at the University of Arkansas, played for nine seasons with the San Diego Chargers and two seasons with the Dallas Cowboys.

The 6-foot, 180 pound Alworth set his records during the years with the Chargers in the American Football League. Most spectacular were his dangerous, leaping catches from Charger quarterback John Hadl.

He was traded to Dallas for Cowboy flanker Lance Rentzel, and had his most satisfying year, and then his most disappointing year.

In 1971, he was a part of the Cowboys' drive to win Super Bowl VI, and it was during that game he made what he called the "two most important catches I ever made."

He snared a crucial third-down 21-yard toss from quarterback Roger Staubach to keep Dallas' opening touchdown drive alive in the second quarter of that game. Moments later he caught a seven-yard scoring pass from Staubach in the corner of the end zone.

During that year, he caught 34 passes for 487 yards, but last year caught only 15 passes. Both years —even 1971 —were far below what he had come to expect during his years with the Chargers.

Alworth holds the pro record for having caught at least one pass in the most consecutive games, 96. His 1,602 yards worth of receptions in 1965 was the second best single season ever, and Alworth caught for at least 1,000 yards in passes during seven straight seasons.

For his career, Alworth caught 542 passes for 10,166 yards and 85 touchdowns.

Clyde's Fastball Shunted Aside By Rookie's Poise

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Texas' brilliant 18-year old lefthander wasn't around at the end Monday night when Ed Herrmann doubled home the winning run in the ninth to lift the Chicago White Sox to a 5-4 win over the Rangers but Clyde looked impressive as he spaced four hits in a six-inning stint.

Clyde, the number one pick in the recent free agent draft, jumped straight to the major leagues after being a high school phenomenon. He made his second major league start and drew a near capacity crowd of 33,010, striking out six and allowing only one earned run before a blister on his pitching hand forced him to leave early.

Bill Melton ruined Clyde's chance for a second major league victory with a runscoring single in the eighth. Clyde, like last week in his debut against Minnesota, pitched well but Melton said afterwards that what struck him was the poise shown by Clyde and his assortment of pitches.

"I don't believe that he's just 18 years old—he's just too good for such a young pitcher," said Melton. "I think Clyde is more developed than Vida Blue was when he won 20. He doesn't throw his curve with the same speed that he throws his fastball like most young pitchers."

In other American League games, Minnesota downed Kansas City, 5-2, Boston nipped New York, 1-0, Detroit shaded Cleveland, 4-3, Milwaukee stopped Baltimore 5-3 and California edged Oakland, 4-2.

Fritz Peterson only allowed two hits but one of them was a homer by Dwight Evans in the fifth inning and that's all the Red Sox needed to edge New York, snapping the Yankees' string of 13 consecutive wins at home.

George Scott, Pedro Garcia and Darrell Porter slammed home runs as Milwaukee sent Baltimore down to its fourth straight defeat. Scott, who had driven in the first Brewer run in the second inning with a sacrifice fly, rapped a two-run drive in the eighth inning that snapped a 3-3 tie and gave reliever Bill Champion his second victory against three losses.

Dick McAuliffe scored the winning run on John Ellis' passed ball in the sixtth inning and Mickey Stanley cracked a two-run homer to pace Detroit's victory over Cleveland. It was the eighth victory in nine games for the surging Tigers who had dropped eight straight before their current winning streak.

Back-to-back leadoff doubles by Steve Braun and Larry Hisle catapulted streaking Minnesota to a three-run fourth inning and a victory over the Royals. The victory was the Twins' fifth in a row while the setback was the Royals' seventh in the last nine games.

Weltke Sharp In Tennis Win

BURLINGAME, Calif. (UPI) — Trey Weltke of Los Angeles, who won the state junior tennis crown at San Jose over the weekend, looked sharp in taking his first match in the first round of the boys 18 singles at the United States Lawn Tennis Association Junior Hardcourt championship.

He dropped Doug Brown of Sioux City, Iowa, 6-1, 6-4 Monday.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Positive Outlooks Of Anderson, Aaron

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Manager Sparky Anderson of the Cincinnati Reds and slugger Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves are thinking positively today about two different races.

Anderson is thinking about his Reds getting into the National League's Western Division race while Aaron is thinking about his race with the ghost of Babe Ruth.

Anderson allowed that "at least we've got the feeling we're back in the race" after the Reds defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers, 4-2, in the national TV game Monday night on Tony Perez's two-run ninth-inning homer. The Reds are eight games behind the first place Dodgers but Anderson pointed out "it was like old times... that's the way we came from behind in 1970 and 1972."

Aaron, relaxed and grinning after moving to within 20 homers of Ruth's 714 career record with his 21st of this season in a 9-5 loss to the San Francisco Giants, obviously is starting to feel he can hit another 21 and set a new mark of 715 this year. He previously had taken the position that No. 715 wouldn't come until sometime in the 1974 season.

"I haven't hit that 42 yet," said Aaron, whose career total is 694. "but, I've hit more than 40 in six seasons so I guess it would be no surprise if I should do it again."

The St. Louis Cardinals scored a 7-4 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies, the San Diego Padres defeated the Houston Astros, 8-5, and the Montreal Expos beat the New York Mets, 2-1, in the only other National League games.

Ted Simmons drove in five runs for the second time in a week —three of them with his sixth homer of the season —as the Cardinals rose back to the .500-mark.

Pinch-hitter Boots Day homered off Buzz Capra in the 10th inning to give the Expos their victory over the Mets.

If you live in Mill Valley and you don't know what it's like to have a sharp knife (or whatever) around the house let Jack The Knife show you. Look for the blue bus any Wednesday at Strawberry Town & Country Village in front of Safeway. Jack sharpens anything.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Diversification Is Advised To Novice

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I recently inherited 10,000 shares of Mrs. Smith's Pie Company (OTC). I am a novice as far as stocks are concerned and am worried about the drop in share price recently. I would like your opinion on whether I should hold or sell. — G.C.

A. While Mrs. Smith's experienced problems related to flood damage, the effects of this are now behind. The damage resulted in a 20-cent write-down in per-share earnings for 1972 and also penalized first quarter 1973 comparisons. For the balance of the year earnings should be strong (at about $1.10 a share), aided by an across-the-board price increase and a return to a sufficient supply to meet product demand.

Several bullish developments include the acquisition of a privately owned Midwestern frozen pie firm which will expand Mrs. Smith's distribution in that area, the opening of a pumpkin processing and pie-making plant and a new hot pie distribution center and coffeeshop in Philadelphia. Despite Sara Lee's entry into the frozen pie field, Mrs. Smith's has increased its market share from 24 per cent to 31 per cent. While this is an excellent speculation, I would strongly suggest that you diversify your portfolio to include four or five high-quality issues. In your position, with only a limited understanding of stocks, you should consider taking advantage of the services of a professional investment counseling firm.

Q. I am 50, single and working. I have no pension so it is important that I have a secure investment for this purpose. I have a modest savings account and $3,000 in stock. Now I am putting $50 monthly into an annuity. Should I make any changes? — A.G.

A. An annuity is an ideal choice for a person in your situation, offering guaranteed income for life at retirement. Although you did not disclose what stock you hold, if it is in a company with a good outlook it should provide capital growth to help balance your two fixed capital investments. Periodic additions to your still limited savings account also would be desirable for your future security.

Corporation Will Expand Operations

I-J Special Report

MENLO PARK — Saga Administrative Corporation announced that it is expanding its restaurant operations through the acquisition of San Francisco-based Refectory International Inc., a privately held corporation that operates 15 restaurants including one in Greenbrae.

James W. Morrell, president of Saga Enterprises Inc., a subsidiary of Saga Administrative Corporation, announced the intent to purchase the Refectory chain, founded in 1965 by its present owners David Petersen, John G. Leonudakis and William McCormick. When the sale is completed, the founders will continue to operate the Refectory restaurants.

KEEP CALIFORNIA GREEN

Dan Goodman, a real estate man from Mill Valley, drives around Los Angeles in his 1951 Mercury covered with living dichondra and exhorts people to "Keep Southern California green; grow dichondra on your car." It's actually a publicity gimmick, with Goodman posing as "George Green," a character in a series of radio commercials for Chevron Chemical Company's Ortho Dichondra Weed & Feed. The identity effort was put together by McCann-Erickson, San Francisco.

Word From Cost Of Living Panel Deepens Market Gloom

NEW YORK (UPI) — Word from the Cost of Living Council that industry may not be allowed to pass full costs on to the consumer in Phase IV deepened to gloom on Wall Street, and stocks lost more ground today on the New York Stock Exchange. Trading in the preholiday session was typically slow.

A Cost of Living Council representative, commenting on the possible shape of Phase IV, said the administration may require the nation's companies to stretch some of their increased costs over a long period of time, instead of allowing those costs to be passed along to the consumer. Analysts said in light of that comment, a profit-pinch seems more likely than ever for many companies.

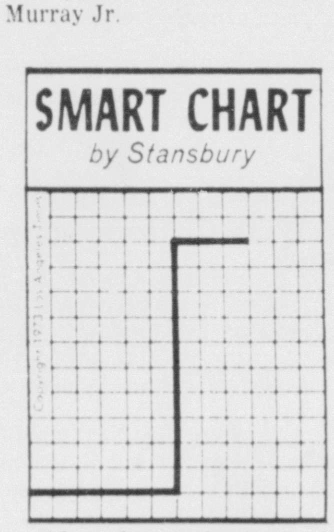
1973 E And H Savings Bonds Still Spiral Up

Sales for 1973 of Series E and Series H Savings Bonds continued their upward spiral in April, as California's year-to-date total came to $143,605,310, and the 31st month in which sales exceeded redemptions, according to Ernest J. Loebbecke, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the T. I. Corp. of California.

A greater spring surge of sales was anticipated in May, as additional millions go into savings bonds from refund checks mailed to those with last-minute filings of federal tax returns. Refund checks for 1972 taxes were accompanied by a special Savings Bond order form making it easier for both the buyer and the banking institutions to prepare bonds in the desired denominations.

County sales throughout the state varied considerably, with Marin County recording $219,730 for April, 1973, as compared to $140,700 in 1972, according to County Chairman William P. Murray Jr.



"Our bargain-basement merchandise now benefits from top-floor prices."

Ship Company To Make Use Of Trailerships

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Matson Navigation Co. plans to start service in August with the first of two new "roll-on, roll-off" trailerships it is chartering from First Chicago Leasing Corp.

The second will enter service at the end of the year, Matson said.

The two 700-foot vessels, valued at $30 million each, can carry freight of just about any size that can be moved on wheels.

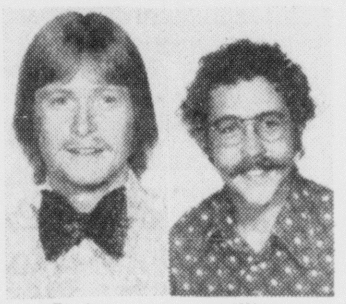
Big And Tall Men Get Special Store At Strawberry Village

A new store called King's Closet, featuring casual clothes for big and tall men, opened this week at Strawberry Town and Country Village in Mill Valley.

Onwers of King's Closet are John Statzer of Petaluma, Knut Noraas of Mill Valley, and David Williams of San Francisco. Statzer, president of the corporation, said his store is the only one in Marin which specializes in casuals for the big and tall. "The best quality name brands will be offered at the store," said Noraas. The store took over space formerly occupied by Alvin Duskin ladies' apparel shop.



Statzer Williams

The King's Closet is in addition to the Queen's Closet stores in Petaluma and Santa Rosa headed by Dorothy Schollenberger of Petaluma, which feature clothing for women.

Noraas, who is secretary-treasurer of the new business, was recently discharged from the U.S. Air Force, where he participated in the handling of POW returnees.

Williams, who served with the 101st Airborne in Vietnam, is vice president.

Statzer, following his family's tradition in the clothing business, began work on the King's Closet after completing his studies at California State Polytechnic University. He is president of King's Closet and is acting as buyer.

Noraas Tripaldi

DAVID R. TRIPALDI, 30, of San Rafael, has been named sales manager of Coldwell, Banker & Company's 40-man Oakland office. He will be responsible for administering East Bay marketing activities for the real estate firm.

Tripaldi has been with Coldwell, Banker for almost five years in its San Francisco unit, where he was an office leasing specialist.

A lifelong resident of the Bay Area, he was born in San Francisco, graduated from Saint Ignatius High School, got his bachelors' degree at the University of Santa Clara, and completed graduate programs in management there.

THE EXCHANGE BANK of Santa Rosa has opened its 11th office in the city of Petaluma. Temporarily located at 325 East Washington Street, the office will be moved to its permanent location in the Golden Eagle Shopping Center when that is completed in mid-1974.

In place of promotional giveaways, the bank will donate a total of $5,000 to Petaluma charities. Anyone may cast votes for his favorite charity by filling out a ballot which is available in the bank lobby. Also, every dollar deposited in a new checking or savings account will be worth one vote for the customer's favorite charity.

As part of the opening, the bank is giving away free full-color maps of Petaluma and Sonoma County. The newest Exchange Bank office features four teller stations and a drive-up window.

Howard R. (Bud) DeSelle, vice president, is manager of the new office. He has been with the Exchange Bank since 1940 and has served as branch manager of the Windsor and Cotati offices, manager of the installment loan department, vice president and manager of the downtown office in Santa Rosa, and the first manager of the master charge department.

YOUNG PEOPLE between 18 and 30 bought 45.5 per cent of all life insurance policies issued in the San Rafael area last year, according to Sabino Marinella, president of Continental Investment Corporation, Boston.

Marinella said his surveys indicate that the average young couple between 18 and 30 now has $26,113 in life insurance coverage, roughly 227 per cent of their disposable family income. "This compares with an average level of $5,137 worth of insurance in force for their parents in 1950, or 112 per cent of disposable family income then," he reported.

The biggest single group of buyers are newly marrieds between 30 and 24, said Marinella.

JOHN G. MARTIN of Mill Valley, consultant to the seafood industry, was elected regional vice president of the National Fisheries Institute at its annual convention in Los Angeles. NFI is the major national trade association representing the processors and primary wholesalers of fresh and frozen seafood.

Martin has been a food broker for the past 30 years and has operated his own business since 1957.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY
34 SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, TUESDAY, JULY 3, 1973 EDITORIAL PAGE

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Heat Wave Brings Early Fire Season

This is the year of extremes — first the Big Freeze last winter and now the early summer heat wave that broke all records and pushed the critical fire season a couple of months ahead.

Grass fires this year are already plaguing fire departments throughout the county because the rains let up early, and grassy hillsides were made tinder-dry by the extended heat wave.

"We are now getting the type of fire hazard that we usually get in August or September," said San Rafael Fire Marshal J. Kenneth Mazza. He and other fire prevention officials stressed the all-important role that parents must play in keeping youngsters away from matches and firecrackers.

WHILE NONE OF the grass fires so far this year have been disastrous in terms of lives lost or property destroyed, each was a potential killer, and some have come too close for comfort.

Fires in Glenwood and in Terra Linda last month raced up the hillside so rapidly that if children had been in the path of flames, they could have been trapped and engulfed.

San Rafael alone averages more than 50 grass fire calls per month. Each of those calls means added expense in equipment and time loss and a heavier financial burden on the taxpayers.

FIRE OFFICIALS emphasize parental control because statistics show that most of the grass fires are set by children, largely through curiosity and the compulsion to experiment rather than through deliberate malice. A typical explanation of a youngster caught: "We lighted three small ones and they were easy to stamp out, but the last one just got away!"

The California Division of Forestry is also concerned because the number of fires caused by children keeps increasing. In 1954, children accounted for only 10.5 per cent of all man-caused forest fires on land under the jurisdiction of the California Division of Forestry. In 1970, children were responsible for 23.5 per cent of all man-caused fires.

AN ANALYSIS OF fire reports in the Angeles National Forest in Southern California showed that 12 per cent of the children responsible were less than 5 years old, and nearly 75 per cent were 10 years or younger.

Constant admonitions on the hazards of fire tend to become tiresome and boring because they are so self-evident. We are shaken out of our indifference only when our own children are involved or trapped in the path of wind-whipped flames, or when our own homes are about to be destroyed by a fire roaring out of control, but by then, it may be too late.

AT THE RISK of being repetitious and a bore, we once again repeat the warning that firemen try to get across each year and particularly this year: Watch where and how youngsters play, and do not tolerate games involving fire, matches or fireworks. The risk is too great, and the victims of the next one could be you and your children.

State College Student Fees Wind Up In Oddest Places

By EARL G. WATERS

What happens to more than $5 million collected each year from students at 17 state colleges? Is the money spent for the benefit of the greatest good of the greatest numbers of students? Are the expenditures properly accounted for? Are there adequate controls to assure funds are spent in accordance with law?

These and other questions are being studied by the Legislative Audit Committee. An examination of records at a few selected campuses may lead to a complete audit on all campuses. The findings may also reopen the issue of mandatory student body fees.

STUDENT ASSOCIATIONS may be established or dissolved at each campus by a vote of the students. Once formed all students must pay a $20 yearly student activity fee. Only Sonoma and Bakersfield do not have the fees.

The law provides that the expenditure of the funds shall be made for programs "that reflect the broadest variety of student interests." Sixteen general categories of programs have been approved. These include cultural and educational enrichment, recreational and social functions, athletics, student publications and scholarships and grants in aid.

TRADITIONALLY STUDENT fees were used for the support of athletics, publications and cultural programs of wide interest. But there has been an increasing diversion of funds to activities of interest to only small well organized groups. And, apparently, there has been a failure to establish adequate controls accompanied by a lack of good accounting.

The funds are augmented by ticket sales for athletic and other events and by business type operations which include book stores and food services.

WHILE ATHLETICS continue to take a large share of the funds, football stands alone as being the one athletic activity which produces more revenue than is expfded.

The colleges which were examined are in San Diego, Long Beach and Chico. At each, reportedly, expenditures have occurred which are questionable both as to law and policy.

For example, at Chico more than $5,000 a month is paid in administrative salaries to non-students. The law seems to intend that students be employed in those positions necessary for the administration of the funds. The general manager, a non-student, is paid $1848 a month. Other than part time students hired at hourly rates ranging from $1.75 to $3.00, the total monthly payroll for students is only $527. Four other students are hired at annual stipends of from $500 to $1,600.

OTHER ODDITIES at Chico were the naming of a non student as "poet laureate" with a grant of $600; financing voter registration, and purchase of a patio boat and motor for $4,600 without approval for the use of administrative employees.

At San Diego considerable funds are spent for small minority group activities. Fourteen members of the Black Students Council attended a conference in New York at a cost of $3,400. Another $400 was spent for students of the group to attend a football game. The Mexican American students spent $700 for a benefit for the United Farm Workers and another $200 for their president to fly to Mexico City. Funds were also used to promote and publicize the Young Socialists Alliance and for their purchase of anti-war buttons and posters.

SUBSTANTIAL SUMS are also spent to hire speakers. Long Beach student funds were used to pay Assemblyman Walter Karabian $250 and former Speaker Jesse Unruh $200 to speak. Dr. Benjamin Spock received $1,500 to talk on the anti war movement; Stokely Carmichael was paid $1,100 to talk; former U.S. Sen. Gene McCarthy was paid $1,500 to read poetry while William Everson (Brother Antoninus), Charles Bukowski and Lyn Lifshin were each paid sums over $300 to read their own poetry.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Phillip Schneider Won Love, Respect

We noticed that in your recent article of June 21, 1973, about Mr. Phillip W. Schneider, you forgot to mention that he was an intelligent, competent administrator. His motives were highly humanitarian. He was faced with very difficult and extreme situations. Mr. Schneider was following the outline of an integration plan as requested by the citizens of the District; and, at the time, such a plan had not been tested anywhere else in the country. It is one thing to have the outline of a plan on paper, it is another thing to put it into action, thereby testing the unconscious feelings of all who are affected by the plan.

Mr. Schneider left the District with the love and respect of those who knew him well and worked closely with him.

Flag Day Editorial Wins Commendation

I wish to commend the Independent-Journal on the recent editorial regarding the Flag Day Ceremony held in conjunction with the Elks Lodge, The American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

We know that the American Flag is only a symbol but it symbolizes everything we have as Americans and all that this country stands for.

Revenue Sharing Is Politician's Cop-Out

It seems that our Supervisors are really jumping on the federal revenue sharing bandwagon. They have learned fast that these "bonanza" funds will help obviate the stigma of increasing local taxes (see, North Bay Front Park).

We taxpayers should recognize that revenue sharing is the local politician's cop-out, the way he hopes to get money to spend locally without direct location taxation which he has to take the responsibility for. We taxpayers will pay, regardless, both in direct federal taxes and in the inflation resulting from increased federal deficits.

Story On Religion Was Ably Written

This is a rather tardy response to your June 2, 1973, news story by Don Keown on "Where the Minister is the Medium."

I wish to congratulate the I-J for printing this story, and for Mr. Keown's sensitive article about Mr. Richard Goodwin and his church "Serenity Spiritualist Church", in San Anselmo. I have been a Spiritualist for many years, and this is the first time I have seen or read an article regarding our religion that has been so well written.

Again thank you and Mr. Keown for your fine efforts in reporting on a high level of awareness.

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

The tourist who devotes his summer vacation to extending invitations for all his new shipboard pals to visit him in his hometown spends the rest of the year hoping they won't.

What's needed is not a traveler's check that gets replaced when you lose it — but one which will be replaced when you spend it.

The reason you're being given a longer vacation this year is to put off for as long as possible the day when you'll return to the office and bore everybody with tall tales about your trip.

A fellow needs to get away from all his friends once a year so he can send them "wish you were here" postcards.

Why Were Dirty-Trick Experts Allowed So Close To President?

WASHINGTON — Just before the roof fell in on the Watergate scandal a comforting theory among those uninvolved at the top in the White House was that the whole business had been the work of a few kooks. It resulted from the excesses of nuts such as E. Howard Hunt, then convicted and in jail, and so the worst was over.

Even if that had been true, which it patently was not, the corruption of the men themselves and those in the White House who employed them could not be lightly brushed aside. What emerges now in the case of Hunt, and James W. McCord Jr., is the status of the Central Intelligence Agency.

IN THE 20 YEARS he spent in the CIA Hunt seems to have been accepted by his superiors as merely another rather flamboyant dirty tricks operator. The trashy fiction that he wrote, based on his CIA experiences, heavily laced with sex, appears to have given them no trouble. As a free-wheeling agent in Europe and Latin America he set his own terms, with the fiasco of the Bay of Pigs, which he helped to mastermind, a prelude to the Watergate bugging.

Was Hunt merely a bad apple in the barrel? Or was his capacity to transpose the dirty tricks he had worked on foreign governments into domestic politics a symptom of the pervasive corruption of the vastly overblown intelligence agency? If Watergate leads to a thorough inquiry into the status of the CIA, this will in itself be more than justification for the furor.

BEHIND THE dirty-tricks department is the pernicious doctrine that in coping with the Communist enemy, the end justifies the means. That has long been the Communist code of conduct in seeking to bring about the downfall of the capitalist world.

Thus, Hunt could mastermind the break-in of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist in search of evidence to convict the man who made the Pentagon Papers available to the public. Ellsberg was the enemy. If you could plot the downfall of Fidel Castro and even consider engineering his assassination, why should there be any scruples over the means used to put this enemy behind bars?

BUT THOSE WHO hired kinky types like Hunt, steeped in the dirty-tricks technique, are more culpable than are the Hunts. Chief agent was Charles W. Colson, who employed Hunt and sanctioned several of his dubious ventures. He seems to have had something to do with putting G. Gordon Liddy in place as an aide to John Ehrlichman and later as general counsel to the Committee to Reelect the President.

Liddy, a former FBI agent, is almost as far out as Hunt. Like Hunt, he led a fantasy life, his fantasy being that of a tough law-and-order, shoot-'em-up type: He almost always wore a shoulder holster with a loaded pistol, which he liked to display. When he ran for Congress in upstate New York he would flourish his shoulder holster as he promised to bring criminals to book.

SO MUCH IS still to be learned about Hunt's activities. Why, for example, did he fly out to Denver on a mission to poor, old Dita Beard whose memorandum in the I.T.T. case had put the corporation's $250,000 contribution on the line as paying for the Republican convention in San Diego. In typical phony detective style Hunt wore a red wig and dark glasses. One report is that he was taking a packet of money to Dita to buy her denial of the authenticity of the memorandum and her silence.

Hunt's wife was killed in a plane crash at Chicago's Midway Airport last December. She had insured herself for $200,000 and carried $10,000 in cash. The accident is still under investigation by the Federal Aviation Administration.

THE QUESTION NO ONE has answered, and perhaps the answer can come only from the President, is why these men were in the White House in positions of responsibility. If any security system whatsoever was applied, the kinkiness of these strange men should surely have come to light. For that matter, why was John W. Dean 3rd made the President's general counsel when the most routine inquiry would have shown that he had come close to disbarment for his conduct in the practice of law in a Washington firm?

No matter how much these weird individuals and the Colsons who employed them are discredited, the President's apologists cannot explain why they should have been next door to his private office. That is beyond any extenuation by the last-ditch loyalists.

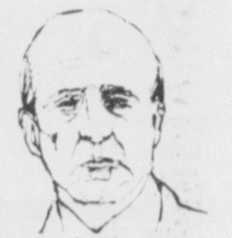
JOSEPH C. HARSCH



J. Edgar Hoover Prevented Partisan Police Organization

We do not know now, and perhaps never will be able to find out, exactly why J. Edgar Hoover so firmly and decisively scotched the plan put together in the White House in midsummer of 1970 for the setting up of a new and overall super-secret police agency in Washington. But the story of what (not why) he did is now on the public record. He opposed the President and stopped the plan to set up the Interagency Group on Domestic Intelligence and Internal Security (IAG).

His decisive role in the affair recalled his previous role when an effort was made and frustrated to set up a single federal police agency. Mr. Hoover was on the other side the first time.

THE FIRST INSTANCE occurred immediately after World War II when the question was what to do about OSS (Office of Strategic Services) which had been set up during the war for intelligence gathering and for clandestine operations against the enemy. Was it to be merged with the FBI?

Gen. William (known as "Wild Bill") Donovan had been lead of OSS. He took a major hand in shaping the long-term arrangement which was to follow the wartime expedient. He made it his business to campaign throughout the formative period against any single, centralized federal police force.

AT THAT TIME there were many different federal agencies with investigative and other police functions and powers — and still are. The FBI had existed since the Roosevelt era. The Secret Service, under the Treasury, was older. So too was the Postal Inspector Service. One proposal as the subject was debated around Washington was for a merging of all these various police activities into the FBI. General Donovan was implacably opposed. In effect, he argued that there was greater safety for American freedom in a number of different agencies rivaling each other. General Donovan won. OSS was transformed into CIA. And it was specifically provided that CIA would have external operations only. It was supposed to keep entirely out of domestic matters which were reserved to the FBI, Secret Service, and other agencies.

THE JULY, 1970, plan would have echoed the merger which General Donovan scotched in the early postwar period. It would have made another and perhaps far more important difference. A member of the President's staff (Tom Charles Huston) was to be assigned to the IAG with "responsibility for domestic intelligence and internal security affairs."

A White House staffer in charge of "domestic intelligence and internal security" could have made a huge difference in the American system. It would for the first time have given a political appointee of the President control over secret police operations.

THE POINT HERE is not that there is anything wrong per se in having federal investigative activities, but whether such activities shall be non-partisan when the director of the FBI, the director of the CIA, and the heads of other important police activities are professionals whose appointments are confirmed by the Congress.

But, as IAG was to be set up in 1970, a strictly political White House staffer appointed by the President and not subject to congressional scrutiny and review would have had the power to order surveillance —even for purely partisan political purposes.

It may well be that the federal police agencies should have greater freedom than they now enjoy to operate against unlawful or disruptive elements in society. But power in such matters must be non-partisan and nonpolitical if a society is to remain free. For whatever reason, Mr. Hoover prevented a move toward a political federal police power in July of 1970.

Weeping Gap Has No Trouble Keeping Its Population Down

Cities seem to be going to a lot of trouble these days to control growth, preparing new general plans, rezoning, setting aside open space and fighting battles in courts.

The task is even tougher in the face of glowing brochures and publicity distributed by chambers of commerce, full of glowing reports to lure residents and businesses.

PERHAPS THE EASIEST way to curb growth at small cost and effort would be to have chambers sent out brochures reading something like this:

Weeping Gap, founded by a group of lost pioneers in 1859, lies in the center of an arid valley, known to the Indians as "The Valley of the Deadly Spiders."

Weaping Gap is located 346 miles south of Tornado Junction and 189 miles north of Bottomless Well and is served by a two-rut dirt road and emergency parachute jumps.

THE PEOPLE WHO work and live in Weeping Gap refuse to talk about it; making it an ideal community for those who don't want to talk to anyone.

The population is 463 and is expected to reach 464 next year, according to the town gossip.

RESIDENTS ENJOY a balmy one-season climate, with smog-free air propelled by Santa Ana winds, up to 150 miles an hour. The annual average temperature is 102 degrees and precipitation fourth-tenths of an inch.

The combined tax rate of $11.67 entitles residents to all services; use of the town well, a seat at the annual town meeting and free entry in the annual Fourth of July horseshoe pitching tournament.

The Weeping Gap Medical Center, strategically located adjacent to Boot Hill, has an unsurpassed record in the treatment of scurvy.

THE LABOR SUPPLY is somewhat limited since the blacksmith left town during World War I and the wheelwright died, but economic development possibilities include basket weaving, lava rock collecting and buzzard hunting.

Weeping Gap currently has available 3,240 acres of land zoned for industry and 8.5 acres for single family homes and offers a lot of space in close proximity to a lot of other space.

CHILDREN ARE happy in Weeping Gap because there aren't any schools, and the crime rate is extremely low because there isn't anything in town worth stealing.

Weeping Gap is the cultural center of the valley and is noted for its annual toenail cutting contest, which attracts some of the best toenail cutters in the west.

Six-toed Seedy Brown, the local favorite, won the championship last year when he removed a two-month growth of toenails with a sharpened axe in 10.2 seconds, an all-time record."

Temps Quits Novato Works Director Post

Clifford E. Temps, 35, Novato public works director since 1968, has resigned effective July 31, or sooner. to enter the building contracting business.

City Mgr Charles A. Brown announced the resignation yesterday and said he will start immediately to seek a replacement.

Temps will be the second department head in the city to leave at the end of this month. Police Chief Allen V. Klemme, who cited differences with Brown, also will leave the city payroll, July 31.

Temps said he believed he had been working for the city long enough and is leaving to go into private business as a contractor in Novato.

Brown said Temps had been considering leaving the city post of some months, but the "time which has been required to finalize this change" has presented a problem. Brown said he couldn't recruit for a replacement until Temp's decision was firm.

Temps said he has been preparing for six months to get a general engineering contractor's license. Now, he said, he has the license and "a supplement" to build homes.

He started with the city in May 1973, as an assistant city engineer, became associate civil engineer in 1967 and public works director in 1968.

Consolidated Maternity Care Viewed

A proposal that maternity care be consolidated in a single hospital in Marin County will be among the recommendations to be discussed next Tuesday at a public hearing on the first two sections of the Bay Area Health and Facilities Plan.

The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. in the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. auditorium at Third and Brooks streets, San Rafael.

The two sections of the plan under discussion will be general hospital acute inpatient services and long term nursing care.

Joan M. Ripple, executive director of the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Marin County, said that the maternity care proposal came about because a medical survey showed that hospitals need to have about 2,000 deliveries a year to keep up with the latest in equipment and techniques.

At present, she said, about 700 Marin mothers go to San Francisco each year to have their babies. About 300 of these are born at Kaiser Foundation Hospital, which will soon open a maternity section at its San Rafael facility.

The others may choose San Francisco hospitals, however, because of belief better care is available. Marin General Hospital currently is delivering about 1,000 babies a year, while about 250 are born at Novato General Hospital. No other Marin hospitals currently have obstetric facilities.

On the U.S. Commerce Department's seismic risk map, all California is in either a major or moderate earthquake zone.

We'll Sue White House For Leaving Us Off 'Enemy' List

WASHINGTON — The big story in Washington last week was the revelation that the White House had an official "enemies" list which they intended to use to "get" the people who opposed the Administration.

Naturally, anyone worth his salt in this town was hoping to make the list. The test of one's importance in Washington obviously depends on how seriously the White House takes you and to what lengths they would go, to use a John Dean word, to "screw" you.

WHEN THE LIST was released, I searched it frantically for my name. First there was the "Dirty Twenty." I didn't make it so I waited for the second list of 200, and discovered I hadn't made that one, either. I thought to myself, "What kind of people do we have in the White House who don't even know who their real enemies are?"

Then the phone started to ring. Friends called to give their condolences. Sources who had been leaking to me on a steady basis telephoned to say they hadn't realized for the past five years that they had been leaking to nobody. Colleagues who made the enemy list stopped by the office to rub in the fact that I was finished as a serious communicator.

BILL MAULDIN telephoned from Chicago. He also hadn't made the list. Pat Oliphant checked in from Denver because he was left off. Paul Conrad of the Los Angeles Times was furious because they hadn't mentioned him. Herb Block said, "That does it for me. No more Mr. Nice Guy."

The worst blow came at lunch time when I went to the Sans Souci restaurant and found myself sitting next to the kitchen. The maitre d'hotel working from the "list" was seating all the White House enemies at the best tables.

WHEN I PROTESTED about the table, Paul said, "You're lucky to be here at all. With all the enemies the White House has, I can no longer let in every Art, Dick and Harry."

I must say my wife took it well. "You may not be an enemy to them," she said, kissing me on the cheek when I walked in, "but you're still an enemy to me."

That night I studied the list again. It seemed to be filled with such mediocre people. Then suddenly it dawned on me! The White House knew exactly what they were doing. These thugs and double-crossing, lying rats (names on request with a self-addressed envelope) had drawn up the list not to get the people on it, but to get the people who were left off it.

THEY KNEW THE best way to "screw" their real enemies was by leaving them off the most prestigious list in the United States today.

By not mentioning us, they knew editors and TV executives would lose faith in us and find ways of putting us out of business.

"What a Machiavellian plan," I said to myself. "Why did it take me so long to realize it?"

I IMMEDIATELY called Block, Mauldin, Oliphant and Conrad and told them what the White House was up to.

We decided there was only one thing to do. We will immediately institute a class-action suit against the White House, John Dean III, Charles Colson, Bob Haldeman, John Ehrlichman and possibly the President of the United States, on behalf of all the people in the United States who did not make the official enemies list.

WE INTEND TO prove we were financially damaged, publicly humiliated and suffered grievous professional injury. We will prove that the White House conspired to put out a straw man list of names to detract from their real enemies in the media, the arts, the Congress and the business world.

We only hope Maurice Stans has enough money in his safe to pay for the damages we are certain will be awarded to us. If not, we intend to attach certain homes in Key Biscayne and San Clemente.

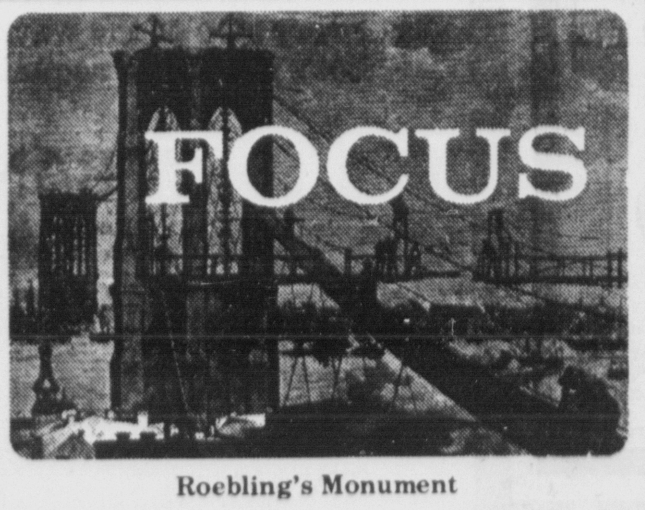
$1.2 Million Fire At Printing Firm

SASSET, England (UPI) — A spark from welding equipment started a fire yesterday that caused $1.2 million in damage at a printing factory.

The welders, officials said, were installing fire fighting equipment.



Roebling's Monument

When John Roebling came to New York in 1867 to design the Brooklyn Bridge, he had no idea that jokes about swindlers selling the famous structure would someday become part of American folklore. After 13 years of construction, the bridge was dedicated in 1883. With its unique steel cables and record-breaking span of 1,595 feet, the bridge became one of the architectural marvels of the 19th Century. Roebling himself died before construction began, but the bridge and the theory behind it remain an enduring monument to the pioneering bridge designer.

DO YOU KNOW — What river does the Brooklyn Bridge span?

Trash Firm To Accept Newspapers

The Marin Sanitary Service of San Rafael will accept bundled newspapers from its customers "effective immediately," Joseph J. Garbarino, co-owner of the firm, said yesterday.

Customers on routes in Ross, Larkspur, San Rafael and the Las Gallinas Valley may place bundled papers by their garbage cans for pickup on regular collection days at no extra charge, he said.

Garbarino said the firm has decided to recycle newspapers as a public service and said a worldwide shortage of paper pulp has created a "new market for newsprint."

The firm will sell the paper to an Oakland company for $14 per ton, he said, or "enough money to break even on labor and trucking costs."

Garbarino said he hopes to collect 30 tons of newspapers weekly.

Honor Society

Patrick S. Lowery of Larkspur and Mary V. Upshaw of San Rafael have been initiated into the honor society Phi Kappa Phi at California Polytechnic State University at San Luis Obispo.

Flournoy Would Retire Bonds With State's New Sales Tax

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State Controller Hugh Flournoy yesterday said that although the one-cent state sales tax increase was "ludicrously unjust" the money it raises should be used to buy out some of the state's bonds.

"This course of action represents a sound investment for the future; $500 million in canceled bonds could save the taxpayers about $250 million in interest costs on 10 year bonds and $500 million on 20 year bonds," Flournoy said.

Flournoy, a contender for the 1974 Republican gubernatorial nomination, also said there "can be no justification for this sales tax increase under existing circumstances" in reference to the state's $829 million budget surplus from the 1972-73 fiscal year.

The boost in the tax went into effect at 12:01 a.m. Sunday after Gov. Ronald Reagan vetoed a bill which would have delayed it for six months and provided a onetime income tax rebate of 30 per cent.

The sales tax increase was enacted last year to help pay for the state's new property tax relief-school aid program. When the $829 million surplus emerged later, virtually everybody agreed a delay was in order.

However, last minute efforts to reach a compromise between lawmakers, particularly Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, and Reagan failed to produce an agreement.

Reagan said the Democratic-sponsored measure's provisions were "grossly unfair and inequitable."

Flournoy said his bond buying proposal "has two additional advantages over a sales tax reduction for California taxpayers.

"First, the money is saved for all taxpayers in proportion to their total tax liability and therefore avoids the equity problem in a sales tax reduction.

"Second, about 20 per cent of a state sales tax reduction goes straight back to the federal government due to reduced deductions on federal income tax returns," Flournoy said.

"The surplus should be disposed of as soon as possible before the temptation becomes too great to spend it on nonessential programs," Flournoy added.

Ships Awaiting Grain To Russia

HOUSTON (UPI) — Only 18 freighters are awaiting loads of grain to carry to Russia. Elevator operators at the Port of Houston said yesterday these ships should be loaded and on their way by the middle of the month.

Labor disputes, boxcar shortages and a sudden influx of large freighters kept between 40 to 60 ships waiting for months during the winter and spring for Russian wheat shipments.

Security Pacific Bank announces

Or:
How we've made investing easy for the investor.

All you need is a checking account with us.

You say the word and each month we'll slip a pre-determined amount out of your checking account and into a common stock investment. Or into your savings account. Or into the purchase of a U.S. Series E Savings Bond. Or all three. You decide.

You also decide exactly which stock or stocks you'd like us to buy for you. You select from a list of the twenty-five largest corporations included in Standard & Poor's Industrial 425 Index, based upon the market value of the outstanding shares of common stock of these corporations. You can buy full shares, or you can buy fractional shares.

Automatic Investment Service is unique. Security Pacific is the first and only bank in California to offer its customers this convenient new way to invest and save on a regular basis, automatically. Another "something special."

Your next step should be toward your nearest branch. And let us know exactly what you want us to do for you: Invest in common stocks, in Series E bonds, transfer money into your savings account, or set up the combination which you feel best suits your own objectives.

Then relax. We'll do the rest.
